Machines, Money, Men.
A Great Fight.
Strange Russia.
Does Baby Laugh?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CONGRESSMEN WILL introduce presently bills for road building, requiring $350,000,000 in 1931. If the states should pay an equal amount, it will mean spending more than $700,000,000.

No wiser expenditure could be made, or better way found to put money into circulation.

THE NUMBER employed, unfortunately, would be small, since modern road making is done by machinery, spreading out the path of cement, as buckwheat batter is spread on a hot griddle.

We have the money, the men and the machines, and they ought to be kept moving.

DID YOU SEE the New York prizefight between Kid Petrolle, Italian, and the plucky Irish lad, Jimmy McLarnin?

If not, you missed what spectators called "a wonderful fight."

McLarnin was knocked down twice in the fourth round, his hand broken in the second round. His face was covered with blood from the start, his mouth, nose and eyes cut and bleeding. Once he took a count of nine. The referee and his backer wanted McLarnin to give in and stop, before the 10 rounds ended. He would not, and fought through, bloody and battered.

You read: "The audience was delighted, men and women around the ring screamed and yelled enthusiastically."

One prosperous citizen from out of town dropped dead. He'll have something interesting to tell the angels.

When the greatest city in the world legalizes that kind of brutality, politicians taking their share of profits and men and women add that kind of "sport" to their amusement, you need not wonder that crime and racketeering have become important business enterprises.

RUSSIA'S GOVERNMENT may fail and czars come back with grand dukes, to take from peasants the land they think they now own.

But some things that the Russians are doing, whether they fail or succeed, should stir up useful thought in other countries, that think themselves superior, including this country.

FOR INSTANCE, Mr. H. R. Knickerbocker, investigating Russian affairs for Cyrus H. K. Curtis, describes "the largest farm in the world," owned and run by the Russian government. It covers 642,000 acres, more than 1,000 square miles.

Two thousand, eight hundred permanent laborers are employed at 100 rubles ($50) a month. The government has invested $14,000,000 in the farm. 300,000 acres were sown this year in wheat and rye.

That is really applying methods of big industry to farming, about what we talk much and do little.

IF YOUR BABY is solemn, doesn't laugh and even declines to gurgle when you make foolish faces and sounds, don't be worried.

It is all a matter of temperament.

Two thousand five hundred and twenty-five tests made by the Child Development League Institute, at Columbia University, show that babies and very young children laugh rarely of their own accord.

They need no longer envy R. E. Donnell, 63 years old, president of the Nashville Liberty Bank and Trust Company, which recently failed. He went to a hotel, put his watch and chain in an envelope addressed "to Ridgely E. Donnell, Jr., from Daddy," took a lace from one of his shoes and choked himself to death. Some men take their responsibilities more seriously than others.

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S island, called on the map "Juan Fernandez Island," off the coast of Chile, has a population of 298, according to Chile's census.

If Alexander Selkirk, the original Robinson Crusoe, went back he would find many footprints in the sand and no "man Friday."

However, for millions of boys, now and hereafter, that will always be a desert island, with wild goats and one white man carrying an umbrella made of goat-skin. Imagination conquers fact.

THOMAS A. EDISON sent a dictating machine, ornamented with gold and ivory, to Pope Pius, and received from the Pope yesterday a medal of solid gold with a picture of the Pope on one side, of Vatican City on the other.

Long ago at the request of this writer, Mr. Edison sent a similar machine, more primitive, to the great Russian Tolstoy, who wrote "I had to live to be 70 years old to know how to do my work easily."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." That ancient saying influences orthodox slaughtering of food animals in Jewish communities, and its influence is interestingly

FEAR WOMAN FLIER LOST AT SEA

Friends Say Mrs. Keith-Miller Felt Death Warning on Eve of Pittsburgh Hop

(Copyright, 1930, all rights reserved by the Associated Press.)

HAVANA, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—A premonition of death, which she thrust aside through fear of being thought a coward, haunted Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, plucky Australian aviator, whom air officials here believed today to have perished in an attempt to fly from Havana to Miami yesterday.

ABANDON HOPE

Virtually all hope has been abandoned for her safety, searching parties in six airplanes from here and Miami having flown for hours over the stretch of Gulf and Florida Keys without a trace of her or the plane in which she set out at 9:11 a. m., yesterday. She was due in Miami before noon.

Aviation officials expressed the belief the plane, through lack of a drift indicator, was blown off its course into the Gulf of Mexico. Three planes are searching that area. Mrs. Keith-Miller's supply of gasoline could not have lasted beyond 3 p. m. yesterday.

KANSAS JAILER SHOT DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 29.—(INS.)—Louis A. Olivero, former city detective, now a deputy sheriff and chief jailer at the county jail, was shot and killed today as he left his home en route to the jail.

Witnesses said an automobile was driven slowly past Olivero, and one of the occupants fired at him.

Olivero, who was said to have the largest working knowledge of Italian gangsters in the city, had received many death threats.

It was the fifth murder in Kansas City this week.

DO-X Ablaze In Lisbon Harbor

LISBON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Fire broke out today on board the German seaplane DO-X, at anchor in the harbor here.

The DO-X, biggest flying boat in the world, arrived here Thursday at the end of a European tour which had taken her to Holland, England, France and Spain, from Altenrhein, Switzerland, where she was built.

Her owners had planned a flight to New York by way of the Azores, but abandoned this project because of bad weather over the ocean. They hoped, however, to send the plane to Brazil next month or early in January.

RAIN, WARMER FORECAST HERE

Slowly rising temperatures today broke the near-zero cold, as the Weather Bureau predicted snow changing to rain late tonight and tomorrow.

With the moderating weather came welcome relief to thousands to whom the frigid wave brought acute distress, and a lessening of the immediate demands on downtown charitable organizations which sheltered a small army of destitute over Thanksgiving.

The lowest drop of the mercury was to 13 at the weather bureau early today. At the Ingram weather station, 4 was recorded, while other suburban districts reported temperatures ranging from 6 to 12. Soon after the sun rose the thermometer was mounting toward 20, with the prospect that it would reach 30 late today.

A six-inch snowfall was reported from Mercer County. Snow or light rain was prevalent in the Middle West. The storm will reach here tonight, according to Forecaster W. S. Brotzman.

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—The trial and execution of Sacco and Vanzetti came out of the files of the Russian newspapers today and went into the interminable columns those papers have been devoting to the trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the Stalin government.

The newspaper Izvestia said:

"Of course, Soviet justice cannot be compared to the bourgeois justice which executed Sacco and Vanzetti in spite of documental proof of their innocence."

This was the general tenor of long editorials and news accounts concerning the trials of the eight

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Every cloud has its silver lining. But it won't plate your umbrella.

Last month we were holding stocks for a long pull.

Today we feel less like the tooth and more like the dentist.

The reaction started when U. S. Steel woke up, shook itself and asked:

"What became of last year?"

U. S. Steel is the bell cow of the herd. When it comes back the market arrives with it.

The deacon was chased by a ghost.

That ghost ran the deacon so far in five minutes that it took the deacon one year to get back.

We got the same kind of a chase in October, 1929.

Two Athletes Near Death Settling Football Bet

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 29.—Settlement of a wager on the outcome of a football game resulted in four fire departments being called, and nearly ended fatally for two Monessen athletes trapped in the wind-swept top rigging of the new Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad bridge over the Monongahela River here.

Donnie Isaho, 24, of Monessen, is in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital recovering from the effects of three hours' exposure in a girder-hold of the double-deck bridge. Frank Dale, 22, a companion, is recovering at his home from similar effects.

Isaho and Dale were to cross the top deck of the bridge from one side of the river to the other and return. Both fulfilled their promise and were returning when Isaho climbed down into the 15-foot girder-hold and was trapped. When he collapsed from the cold Dale joined the lad and both remained there for three hours.

Charleroi, Monessen, North Belle Vernon and Belle Vernon fire companies were called. John Marauda, a Charleroi fireman, climbed across a life line to the girder compartment and lowered the two boys to the ground on ropes.

By JESS CARVER,

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The war-torn grey of West Point and the Green of Notre Dame, this year as last, swaggering proudly on the top of the intercollegiate gridiron heap, will come together today, with a quarter of a million eyes eyes focused on the meeting. Army meets Notre Dame in football at Soldier Field, and there will be 125,000 of the faithful in attendance, come, rain, come shine, come snow, come a blizzard, come again.

Today's meeting between the Kay-Dets and the Irish is the seventeenth of a series. The Irish hold the major advantage, with 11 wins, four losses and one tie. Never has a game been played between today's foe that has not been packed from stem to stern with thrills, the sort of thrills that cause goose pimples to rise on ones' arms and ones' heart to do a Charleston where epiglotis should Charleston.

LIFTS HUNTERS' SMOKING BAN

HARRISBURG, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Smoking tobacco again may be a part of the hunters' equipment as they wind up the special doe season today.

Gov. Fisher yesterday recalled that portion of his special proclamation issued a month ago which had banned smoking in the woods. The building of camp fires and the burning of brush in the woods, however, still is prohibited.

The forest fire hazards resulting from the protracted drought had prompted the Governor to issue his proclamation on October 28, just a few days before the season for small game began. He said yesterday that rain and snowfalls had greatly diminished the danger of forest fires through the remainder of the season. He added that hunters and citizens generally had observed the proclamation with "scrupulous care."

Recent Elections Prove Fanatical Prohibition Support Is Worthless

"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad."

Witness the intemperate wrath of the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance. Dr. Wilson's wrath has been kindled by the fact that the Federal Farm Board has given financial assistance to California growers who distribute grape concentrate, and the Department of Justice has failed to prohibit the distribution.

This church leader publicly threatens the political future of President Hoover if Mr. Hoover does not show himself to be as fanatical in support of prohibition as this divine has shown himself to be.

Liberals could not do a wiser thing than encourage all extremists like Dr. Wilson to do their worst for prohibition and against real temperance because their worst, as the verdict of the great jury of people proves, amounts to so little.

IN CALIFORNIA, the Republican candidate for governor in the November elections was a Liberal. He was not a drinking man himself, but a man who believed that prohibition was not temperance and who consequently did not favor prohibition.

All the fanatics declared against Rolph, Liberal Republican, for governor. So the Democratic candidate thought he would take advantage of this opportunity to win votes for himself.

He came out as a bone-dry.

Fanatics all supported him as the Prohibition candidate.

He was beaten by 650,000.

ROLPH, THE LIBERAL, WON BY THE LARGEST MAJORITY EVER GIVEN TO A GOVERNOR IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Rolph, the Liberal, opposed by the prohibitionists and the fanatics, CARRIED EVERY COUNTY IN THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

Rolph, the Liberal, opposed to prohibition, carried one county UNANIMOUSLY—that is, every voter in that county voted for him and not one voter in that county voted against him.

WHAT happened to the Democratic candidate for governor of California, who was supported by Prohibitionists?

HE RAN BEHIND HIS OWN TICKET.

In other words, the support of the Prohibitionists in the recent California campaign for governor actually hurt the candidate they supported.

Roosevelt, Liberal Democrat, won a re-election for governor by 725,000 in the state of New York. Rolph, Liberal Republican, won his election for governor by 650,000 in the state of California.

For 725,000 is only 24 per cent of the total vote in New York state—which is 3,000,000.

But 650,000 is 50 PER CENT of the total vote in California—namely, 1,300,000.

So, if Mr. Hoover only knew it, the opposition of fanatical Prohibitionists of the type of Dr. Wilson would be a definite asset for him.

In fact, if the fanatics would only support the Democratic ticket in 1932, Hoover might be re-elected President of the United States as triumphantly as Rolph was elected the other day governor of California.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

DRYS MAY BACK REFERENDUM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Leaders of the country's prohibition forces are discussing the desirability of lending support to a national referendum on prohibition.

A tentative plan, on which decision has not been reached, would have the prohibition forces stand behind a constitutional amendment, formulated by the anti-drys, calling for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment. This support would extend until Congress had looked over the proposal, and would be contingent upon definite assurance that separate constitutional conventions in each state would pass upon it, and that the decision of these groups would be accepted as final, for a time at least, by the prohibition opponents.

Dry leaders are far from harmony on the plan. F. Scott McBride, Anti-Saloon League superintendent, termed it "a betrayal of prohibition by the dry leaders."

CRIME WAVE SWEEPS CITY

Special Police Squad Patrols Downtown After Series Of Holdups, Robberies

Banditry ran riot in a wave of holdups and robberies last night and early today, reaching a climax when three masked thugs bound 11 men and a woman in the garage of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, 1100 Western avenue, while they looted a safe.

Police heads announced that a special squad would patrol the downtown with tear gas maces and shotguns and that all patrolmen of the Hill and Downtown districts would work an hour later tonight and tomorrow morning in an effort to curb the outbreak of crime.

BANDITS ON RAMPAGE

GIRL IDENTIFIES MAN AS KILLER

Ethel May Banks, 14, of 222 Eighth street, Braddock, an eyewitness of the holdup and slaying of George Miller, Braddock storekeeper, stood before seven Negroes in the county jail.

Slowly her searching eyes moved from one to the other. Finally, she paused and said decisively:

"There's the man that shot Mr. Miller."

Her finger pointed at James Brook, McKees Rocks, who recently pleaded guilty to a series of holdups and robberies in the McKees Rocks district, and was sentenced to serve from 30 to 60 years in jail.

The girl's identification, made late yesterday, will result in a murder charge being lodged against Brook, county detectives said. She is unusually bright, they assert, and her identification tallies with her description of one of a pair of holdup men who shot Miller in his store, 118 Eighth street, Braddock, October 27. He died the same day in Braddock General Hospital.

DETROIT, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—A high speed monoplane with fuel and oil capacity for a 2,800-mile journey has been built here for the United States Army. The plane will be delivered to Wright Field at Dayton after final tests have been made by the manufacturer, the Detroit Aircraft Corporation.

Einstein Allots Half Hour To See Daughter Wed

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Prof. Albert Einstein, who sets a relative value of things, allotted just one-half hour of his time this morning to see his daughter, Margot, married at the Municipal Marriage Bureau.

The savant, who has been working until the early morning hours daily clearing up some matters of mathematics before he sails on his American trip, calculated with mathematical precision that he could spare just 30 minutes to give the bride away to Dr. Dimitri Marianoff, young Russian writer on scientific and artistic subjects. He failed to carry out his program and because a witness was late, he lost a half hour in getting back to his own quarters to work.

Ten minutes before the ceremony, which was set for 10:30 a. m., a few blocks away, he, his daughter and Dr. Marianoff emerged from the Einstein home and seemed greatly surprised to see several cameramen outside.

"No, no, don't photograph," he exclaimed, greatly distressed, but he was finally persuaded to tarry a moment.

While customarily in Germany a bride's father sports a topper for such an occasion and wears a cutaway to the marriage clerk's office and formal dress to the church, in case there is a church wedding afterwards, nothing in Herr Einstein's appearance indicated the solemnity of the occasion.

EXTRA SESSION LOOMS AS HOOVER FORCES COURT ISSUE

STEP ANGERS PRESIDENT'S ADHERENTS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—A legislative chaos and an extra session of the new Congress seems imminent today in the face of President Hoover's announcement that he will submit the revised League Court protocol to the Senate next week.

Over-riding the counsel of his own party leaders, who opposed its submission almost to a man, the Chief Executive, in pursuing this course, evidently accepted the advice of League Court supporters.

The Capitol today was abuzz with comment created by the President's unexpected pronouncement. Senate leaders conflicted in their opinions. Some were for immediate action, others favored a special session of the Senate next spring. Still others thought it should be swept aside in the interest of more pressing domestic issues.

DECISION UP TO SENATE

In making this announcement, President Hoover said:

"I am submitting the protocols of the World Court to the Senate the forthcoming session. I, of course, have hoped that it would be dealt with at that time. It is for the leaders of the Senate, however, to determine if it should be brought up in the press of other business during the short session.

"Certainly it should not be made an instrument of obstruction in attempts to force an extra session. Both its friends and foes should agree upon this."

One Senator suggested that it was a polite method of "passing the buck."

The general impression was the President was bowing to the intense "lobby pressure" by League Court supporters.

SPLIT WITH LEADERS

Senator Watson, of Indiana, said he feared it would force an extra session of the new Congress. Watson is Republican floor leader and the keyman in the Senate "Old Guard."

The same sentiment was expressed by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, leader of the "Young Guard," which has valiantly supported the President's legislative programs heretofore. Both these men advised Mr. Hoover he was risking an extra session if he persisted in submitting the League Court.

Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, announced he will call his committee for early consideration of the protocol, although he is vigorously opposed to the court and all other foreign entanglements.

Johnson, Foe of Court, Forecasts 'Real Fight'

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—(Universal.)—"This is a challenge to Americanism and it will be met!"

Thus Senator Hiram W. Johnson declared with vehemence his position upon learning that the President plans to present the League Court protocol to Congress at the short session.

Senator Johnson spoke with certainty as he declared:

"The challenge to Americanism will be met to the fullest. It will take up a lot of time. It will be a real fight.

"Those who believe in this country first will do their utmost to prevent the internationalists from taking this country into European controversies.

"It will be resisted to the finish."

American Embassy In Mexico Now Dry

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—J. Reuben Clark, Jr., New American ambassador to Mexico, announced that he would not serve liquor in the American Embassy during his term.

Clark, who presented his credentials to President Ortiz Rubio yesterday, made the statement in his first conference with the press.

The new ambassador put his decision into effect when a governmental guard which had escorted him to the presidential palace came to the embassy. The officers were invited in, but no liquor was served.

$250 OFFERED TO FIND BOY

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Nov. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hines, parents of Robert Hines, 17, who has been mysteriously missing since November 7, have offered a reward of $250 for information as to the whereabouts of the lad, a player on the high school football squad here.

The reward offer came after a letter, received by Pittsburgh detectives, said Robert was in a hospital and being well cared for. Inspector Frank Boyd, of the Pittsburgh detective bureau, said he had checked all hospitals in the city without finding a trace of the missing youth. Other hospitals in the western part of the state are being checked.

Yet N. B. Krilenko, the fiery public prosecutor, is subjecting the defendants to merciless cross-examination, and he has called additional witnesses, even though he has gained enough evidence already to justify a decision by the four judges.

Criticizing intimations in the foreign press that this trial is a "frame-up" for purposes of intimidating anti-Soviet elements in Russia, one of the leading Moscow papers asserts:

DECISION NEAR ON COAL STRIKE

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Upon the success or failure of week-end negotiations between miners and employers depended today whether 300,000 workers in Britain's coal mining industry leave their jobs Monday.

In telegrams last night to the mine owners and the Mine Federation, with which the workers are affiliated, the government urged opposing factions to conclude arrangements by which the miners may continue work pending a conference next week.

Observers believed that, even should this move succeed in keeping the workers from striking Monday, the government stood little chance of effecting a settlement by next Thursday.

The miners are dissatisfied with the operators' expressed intention of applying the spread-over week to the industry. This would allow owners to work their men on a basis of 90 hours every two weeks instead of the fixed 7½ hours which the new coal mines act requires. The owners say the alternative is a wage reduction.

JUDGE ORDERS THOMPSON JAILED

Uniontown Financier Fights Surrender December 9 To Serve Contempt Term

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 29.—Unless satisfactory exceptions are filed to an opinion handed down by Judge J. W. Dawson, of the Orphans Court, J. V. Thompson, formerly one of the nation's greatest coal barons and in 1915 reputed to be worth $75,000,000, will on December 9, be committed to the Fayette County Jail in contempt of court for failure to meet obligations of about $200,000 to the estates of Emma Messmore and the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, daughter of John Nicols.

SAYS APPEAL LIKELY

Judge Dawson did not state the length of the jail term, but ordered that Thompson appear before him at the stated date in custody and be prepared to undergo a prison term. Judge Dawson also set the same date as the time for hearing the exceptions which are expected to be filed. E. C. Higbee, counsel for Thompson, says that such exceptions will be filed and he will present his argument on the date set for Thompson's commitment to the county prison.

The attorney also stated that if his action in the Fayette County Court fails the case probably will be appealed to a higher court with the appeal acting as a stay of sentence.

JUDGE CENSURES THOMPSON

Judge Dawson roundly condemned Thompson for spending between $50,000 and $60,000 for the compilation of a family history when his creditors were in want. He said:

"To spend this amount of money for such purposes by a man of abundant means and no creditors would invite unfavorable comment by his business associates, but when such an improvident expenditure is made with the obligation hanging over him to make restitution to a trust, the duty of the court is so plain that no elaboration is necessary.

"To have come into court with a previous tender of this amount of money or its apportionment to this estate and the Messmore estate would appeal more to the conscience and discretion of the court rather than to say in effect that the preservation of a family history is paramount to restitution of trust funds. To this the court could not subscribe.

FAILS TO ATONE

"We have sympathy for Thompson in this unhappy plight, just verging on his seventy-seventh year and now sitting in the shadow of the sunset of his life, with vision badly impaired and cherished hopes crushed, yet with a mind clear and alert and a seeming desire for his liberty to atone for his mistakes, now being realized, by being permitted to continue his efforts to earn money in the sale of coal acreage and make restitution. It was because of this compassion and above all because of his well-recognized ability for salesmanship and willingness to work that induced us to make such extensions as we did in the hope that restitution might be assured and the community at large benefited by sharing in the sale of coal lands and himself saved the humiliation.

"Save Thompson himself, none feels more keenly than I the disappointment in his inability to make the hoped-for sales and the dread order to commit."

PURSE STOLEN

The trio made no effort to hide their activities, blasting the safe directly in front of the large window looking onto the street without first bothering to lower the blinds. The loot totaled more than $1,000. The robbers cast aside 21 fare boxes after making a vain attempt to open one of them.

GIRL THREATENED

That was the greeting of one of the robbers to Miss Adelaide Healey, of 1014 North Lincoln avenue, as he escorted her from an automobile in front of the establishment into the garage. She was waiting for Attorney William Hildorfer, of 2433 Snyder street, who, stopping for gasoline, had walked into the garage during the holdup.

10 MEN BOUND

The holdup trio, one bearing a shotgun and the other two revolvers, entered the garage shortly after 2:30 o'clock. Ten men, including K. T. Start, a representative of the Goodrich Rubber Company, of 1139 Marshall avenue, were rounded up and lined against the garage wall. Their hands were bound behind them with wire, rope or adhesive tape. Then they were marched into one of the large motor coaches and ordered to remain quiet.

The robbers then began work on the safe. While they were thus engaged, Attorney Hildorfer entered. When the men turned their guns on him he said:

"Don't shoot. I'll give you what I have."

ATTORNEY ROBBED

The attorney turned over $75 to the robbers and remarked:

"Don't keep me here. I have a lady waiting for me in my car."

"We'll take care of that."

One of the thugs then went to Hildorfer's machine and asked Miss Healey to step into the garage. As soon as she was inside, her hands were bound and she, too, was forced into the bus. After cracking the safe, the robbers fled.

$100 Bill Dropped In Prison Returned

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Hundreds of men confined in the Tombs are accused of theft, yet a woman who lost a $100 banknote there has recovered it. Calling upon a prisoner, she dropped the money in a corridor. A keeper turned it over to the warden.

Hit-Run Driver Leaves Child in Road

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Nov. 29.—Police are searching for a hit-and-run driver who ran down Mary, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Anna Wanchit, and left the child on the street suffering from bruises and shock.

DAVIS CERTIFIED FOR SENATE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—The official certificate of election which entitles James J. Davis to a seat in the United States Senate, today was on the way to the Secretary of Labor at Washington.

Secretary Davis next Monday will become junior senator from Pennsylvania, succeeding Joseph R. Grundy. The election certificate was signed here late yesterday by Gov. Fisher and dispatched to Secretary Davis.

The certificate was prepared by the governor upon receipt of the official election returns from Philadelphia, the last county to report. The official tabulation for the entire state showed Davis defeated Sedgwick Kistler, Democratic candidate, by a plurality of 938,848.

Davis is the third man elected to fill the same Senate term. In 1926 William S. Vare was elected but the Senate barred him and declared the seat vacant. Gov. Fisher then appointed Grundy. The term expires March 4, 1933.

Ex-Wife Shoots Man, Kills Herself

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Violet Redford Mix died last night from a bullet wound, self-inflicted, after she had broken into the home of her former husband, N. D. Mix, and shot him twice in the abdomen. He is in a critical condition. Police ascribed jealousy as the motive.

DOAK NAMED TO DAVIS POST

President Ignores Demands Of Green That A. F. of L. Man Be Given Cabinet Job

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—In expressed defense of equal opportunity to office, President Hoover has gone outside the American Federation of Labor ranks to fill the cabinet vacancy left by James J. Davis.

William N. Doak, of Virginia, has been chosen secretary of labor. In announcing the appointment late yesterday, the President said the assertion of William Green, president of the federation, that the post should be filled from within his organization, laid on the chief executive "the duty to maintain the principle of open and equal opportunity and freedom in appointments to public office."

GREEN DISAPPOINTED

Green immediately expressed disappointment on behalf of the Federation officers. His statement refrained, however, from saying whether opposition would be carried to the length of seeking a Senate refusal of confirmation.

Doak is legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, a union not affiliated with the Federation. He is the first labor secretary chosen outside the Federation, and also is the first native American named for the post. He was considered by many Mr. Hoover's choice for the post two years ago, but federation opposition was strong.

INDORSED BY UNIONS

There has been no indication in the Senate so far that objection will be raised to the appointment. The President said Doak bore the indorsement of several score labor unions, a number belonging to the Federation, and pointed out that Green himself had expressed high personal regard for the man. The President said:

"I know that Mr. Doak will represent all labor in his public duties, and that he will reinforce the sympathetic attitude of the administration to the great problems of the wage earner."

Green summed up his viewpoint in the assertion that "the American Federation of Labor is regarded as the American labor movement, speaking for American labor," continuing:

"We have always held that the Department of Labor should be the instrumentality through which labor could express its mind and judgment upon economic and industrial problems affecting the wellbeing of working men and women through a secretary of labor to the President of the United States and his cabinet."

TWO PREDECESSORS

This cabinet post has been in existence since 1913, but only two men have occupied it: William B. Wilson, native of Scotland, throughout the Wilson administration; James J. Davis, born in Wales, ever since the Republicans made their post-war return to office.

Doak is a native of Virginia who rose in labor ranks from switching boxcars in the Bluefield, W. Va., yards. He was elected vice president of his brotherhood in 1916 and assistant president in 1927. A year later he took the combined duties of editor of the Railroad Trainman and legislative representative.

Youngstown Mayor Holds Nation's Morals Hopeless

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan discharged the entire city vice squad, but in a statement accompanying the order he expressed the opinion a change in enforcement officers will be "hopeless." He said:

"Law enforcement will never be a reality until the American people cease their sloppy hypocrisy and get down to common honesty and common decency."

Americans have devoted themselves to the dominant ideal of getting money, regardless of methods, the Mayor said, and the result is "universal corruption and lawlessness." He said:

"My experience as Mayor has taught me that it is impossible to find men in our community who will satisfactorily perform police work. The situation is hopeless, JUST AS THE MORAL OUTLOOK OF THE ENTIRE NATION IS TODAY HOPELESS.

"Personally I am sick and disgusted with the futility of trying to make policemen enforce laws to govern people who refuse to obey their own laws."

Coolidge Favors Direct Action for Help in Crisis

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 29.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

When people are bewildered they tend to become credulous. We are always in danger of expecting too much of the government. When there is distress such expectations are enlarged. The present condition of the country not only is not new but not nearly so bad as it has been at other times. In 1818 when John Quincy Adams learned of the failure of many of the greatest commercial houses he recorded in his diary that the greatest danger would be the application of remedies worse than the disease.

Calvin Coolidge

That is the danger now. All any government can do is to adopt certain policies and provide the public facilities of currency, banks, revenues, highways and the like that enable the people conveniently to do business. A large expenditure of public money to stimulate trade is a temporary expedient which begs the question. Many local governments are already taxing the people too much. Business does not need more burdens but less. The sound way to relieve distress is by direct action. When a surplus exists it will do little good to spend public money for something more we do not need. The people have more power than any government to restore their own prosperity.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

made here since her arrival last week from Pittsburgh, accused themselves today for not having prevented her, forcibly if necessary, from making the flight, against which were all the odds of a poorly conditioned plane, extremely rough weather and the mental hazard arising from fright when she was flying over water. She said just before taking off:

"I don't know why it is, but something tells me I'm going down. I've had the feeling ever since I crossed on the way over from Florida and some how or other I can't shake it off."

She called her plane an "unairworthy crate, one which anybody but myself would refuse to fly," explaining that it was a conditionally licensed ship which she had "rescued from a junk pile" and reconditioned. She said:

"I am trying to put myself over as a commercial pilot. If I can make a flight like that in an old ship without any of the usual equipment, it ought to be an easy matter to get some company interested in using me as a regular pilot."

WORRIED ABOUT HOP

Many of those who came in contact with Mrs. Keith-Miller during her stay at Beck's residence here remarked at her preoccupation and at her comments of not having been able to eat or sleep properly. She admitted to some that she was "worried about the water hop," but she refused to consider the idea of not making the return trip in her plane alone, and finally, after being held up by weather reports for three days, insisted upon starting even though the weather was still bad. She confessed:

"Every one gives me credit for being brave, and to make a go of it I never let them think otherwise, but really I am afraid, desperately afraid, when I'm over water, or mountains, or rough country. I got lost in the Alleghenies not long ago and the fog seemed to hang over me like a death shroud. I was terribly afraid.

"I feel many times like giving it up because I know it's eventually going to get me. But I can't—people would think me a coward. I guess I've just got to keep on until it does get me. Life at its best is short, anyhow, so I guess I have no complaint coming."

She commented that what worried her most was that she had no blind-flying instruments or turn and bank indicator. Asked why she had not equipped her plane with the latter instrument, she said:

"Frankly, I could not afford one."

RADIO KITCHEN AIDS POOR

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Always something new. Now comes the radio soup kitchen and bread line. It will be established and financed in Chicago by WLS, known as the Prairie Farmer station.

Its sponsors said it would be the first station of its kind in the world, and that it would be operated in conjunction with the Volunteers of America, with facilities for feeding approximately 1,500 persons daily.

Staff entertainers from WLS will appear at the soup kitchen each night to provide free shows for the unemployed. In addition a depot to provide clothing for the needy will be maintained.

Woman Loses Sense Of Smell in Crash

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Ever since she was knocked down by an automobile, Miss Bertha Dutton has been unable to smell anything, she explained in filing a suit for $25,000 against Thomas Dowd, driver of the car she said hit her. She fixed $25,000 as the proper compensation for her loss of olfactory sensations.

Freed for Holiday 75 Boys Keep Faith

BAYONNE, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Seventy-five boys at the county parental school have justified faith in them. They were permitted to go home Thanksgiving on promise to return. Not one was even late.

BORDER GUARDS IN GRAFT NET

DETROIT, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Graft in the service which maintains the blockade against Canadian liquor on the Detroit River seemed likely today to result in indictments of 30 present and suspended members of the customs border patrol and dishonorable discharge of 45 others. The force here includes 150 men.

Warrants were out for 13 patrolmen and twice that many alleged bootleggers, charging them with conspiracy to bring in contraband Canadian liquor and beer, bribery and acceptance of bribes.

The Federal grand jury, which has been hearing evidence for two days, was in recess until Tuesday. Then Gregory H. Frederick, chief assistant United States district attorney, will resume introduction of the testimony which is expected to result in more than 50 indictments.

Director's Alimony To First Wife Cut

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—The alimony of Luther Reed, film director, was reduced by half when his first divorced wife, Naomi Childers, dismissed her contempt of court case, brought because of a thousand dollar arrearage in her alimony.

Reed has to pay Miss Childers $250 monthly and Jocelyn Lee, his second wife, who has a divorce suit pending, $100 monthly. The director has sued Miss Lee on a cross complaint.

Woman Loses Suit To Share Duke Millions

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Miss Helen Maher, Wall Street customers' clerk, lost a motion in State Supreme Court in her suit for $313,000 against the estate of the late Benjamin N. Duke, tobacco millionaire.

She said Duke promised to bequeath her the money and sought to examine the executors of the estate before trial.

SPEED ON HALL SITE URGED

Action to compel County Commissioners to decide upon a Town Hall site and release the $6,000,000 bond issue to benefit the unemployed today was being considered by the Town Hall Committee of the North Side Chamber of Commerce.

Towards formulating a definite plan of action, the committee has called a meeting for Wednesday afternoon at the Bogs & Buhl tea room. North Side leaders, business men and legislature members of the district have been invited to attend.

F. E. Tenkate, president of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, announced the appointment of Newmeyer as vice chairman of the chamber's Town Hall Committee.

HUNT MYSTERY KILLER OF FOUR

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Bodies of four members of a family, stabbed by an unknown slayer, were found in their Dutchess County farm house at Stanfordville, near here.

Police found their investigation blocked by the lack of a motive and material evidence. They could merely assume that James Husted Germond, member of the Grange and of the Stanfordville village church, his wife, daughter, and son, had been killed in the early evening of Wednesday. The bodies remained undiscovered until today when a creamery, desiring to know why Germond had not delivered his daily milk supply, sent an employe to the Germond home to investigate.

The creamery employe found Germond and his 10-year-old son, Raymond, dead in a wagon house, with the doors closed to conceal the bodies from the view of chance visitors. In the house he discovered the body of Mrs. Mabel Gregory Germond, face down, near the kitchen door, leading to the farm yard, and behind a table and in a corner to which she was apparently pursued by the slayer was the body of the daughter, Bernice, 18 years old.

Memorial to Movie Inventor Set Dec. 9

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—A memorial tablet to Louis Le Prince, motion picture inventor, who showed animated pictures on a screen 44 years ago, will be unveiled at Leeds, England, December 9. His daughter, Miss Marie Le Prince, sailed from New York for the ceremony.

The inventor's first motion pictures were shown at the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb in 1886. Four years later while on a trip to Europe he mysteriously disappeared. His fate was never known.

'Terrible Swede' Of Jack London Stories Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Jacob K. Johansen, credited with being the "Terrible Swede" of Jack London's stories, is dead.

The familiar character of San Francisco's waterfront in the nineties died Thanksgiving Day. He was born in 1859 in Frederickson, Denmark. At the age of 14 he ran away from home to follow the sea.

He earned his sobriquet on the waterfront by his ability as a free-for-all fighter.

REED SEES WAR THREAT ABROAD

Senator David A. Reed, speaking at a meeting of the East Liberty post of the American Legion last night in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, said a 'devil's broth' is brewing in Europe. He said:

"I hope I am not unduly pessimistic but I believe that, if it weren't for the apprehension of Bolshevism, the countries of Europe would be at each other's throats this very minute."

Reed mentioned the ill feeling between France and Italy and Italy and Jugo-Slavia in connection with what he termed 'a black-picture,' declaring:

"There is always the possibility of some incident such as that which started the World War, and foreign statesmen with whom I have talked are pessimistic."

No decision has been reached in naming a new postmaster for Pittsburgh, according to Senator Reed. For a time the question was considered settled, he said, but recently new developments have occurred which have left the appointment very much up in the air, he said.

FARMS RUINED BY GAS, 4 SUE

Alleging that sulphur dioxide fumes and other poisonous gases from the plant of the Clairton By-products Coke Company at the mouth of Peters Creek, Clairton, have damaged their property, four landowners in Lincoln Township and Liberty Borough filed a suit in Federal Court for $1,560,000 damages.

The action was brought against the United States Steel Corporation, Carnegie Steel Company and the Clairton By-products Coke Company, by Agnes Gliwa, Kate Gliwa, Roman Pietrzycki and Frank Wiech.

The bill alleges that when there is a breeze the property of the plaintiffs is covered with sulphur dioxide, which kills plant life; that vapors and gases have polluted and defiled the air over the plaintiffs' lands and rendered the soil unhealthy for living and domestic purposes, and has made the land unfit for raising of live stock.

The plant, according to the bill of complaint, has an average refinement of 40,000 tons of coal daily, which sends into the air as high as 1,000 daily tons of sulphur dioxide, and that as high as 17½ daily tons of picric acid is cast into the air.

Ralph Ince Sued Over Fight Injury

LOS ANELES, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Ralph Ince, motion picture director and actor, was sued by W. M. Patch for $35,000 damages yesterday. Patch alleged he was seriously injured October 25 when he was struck on the head while struggling to prevent Ince from assaulting an unnamed third party with a pistol.

The complaint said Patch interfered in an argument between Ince and the other man at a cafe in Beverly Hills.

COUNCIL LEADER APPEALS FOR SALES

Dr. Claudy, Rabbi Goldenson Commend Aims of Annual White Plague Campaign

Two religious leaders of the Pittsburgh district have urged churches and Sunday schools of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County to support the Christmas health seal sale of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, which is now in progress.

URGES SEAL SUPPORT

Dr. J. W. Claudy, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches of Christ, says:

"The Christmas seal sale of stamps to combat tuberculosis deserves the support of every humanity-loving man, woman and child of Allegheny County.

"From year to year the Christmas seals have been a challenge to everyone in the fight against tuberculosis and an appeal in behalf of those who are less fortunate than we. I most heartily commend the sale of Christmas seals and trust it may have the heartiest support from the churches and Sabbath schools of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County."

URGES EXTRA EFFORT

Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, of the Rodef Shalom Congregation, in a letter to the league wrote as follows:

"I am pleased indeed to be able to indorse heartily the work of the Tuberculosis League. I do hope that our friends will support it this year as before and, if possible, with greater generosity.

"During this time when so many are out of employment, the stress and strain upon the poor, who are at the same time suffering from any disabling disease, are greater than ever. To those of us who are in a position to give, the responsibility is therefore greater than ever to do our part to alleviate the suffering of others."

The League has announced that persons who did not receive seals by mail may obtain them by telephoning headquarters at Bedford avenue and Wandless street.

FETE MEETING 32 YEARS AGO

The thirty-second anniversary of the meeting of Mrs. William Voelliger, of 2047 Pioneer avenue, Brookline, and Mrs. A. W. Probst, of 720 Walnut street, Edgewood, was celebrated at the Voelliger home last night. Guests were members of the two families including Mrs. Willa Neely, of Pittsburgh, daughter of Mrs. Probst, who attended the first annual party of her mother and Mrs. Voelliger, and her daughter, Muriel, 6. The two women met while attending Sunday school more than 30 years ago, and each year since that time gather at a dinner in their homes. A similar dinner will be held at Mrs. Probst's home next March.

Dayton Man Speaks At Rodef Shalom

Rabbi Louis Witt, of Dayton, O., will speak tomorrow morning in Rodef Shalam Temple, Fifth and Morewood avenues, on "The International Mind."

4 Shots, 4 Deer, 4 Years, He Has Short Season

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 29.—Four shots, four deer, in four years. That's the record made in hunting circles by Homer Lostetter, local builder.

Each year for the past four winters Lostetter has taken one shot and killed a deer.

ALTAR DRAPES INSTALLED

The final set of altar curtains, which required one and one-half years of designing, weaving and embroidering, has been installed in Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Alder street.

They are of silk damask, 31 feet high. They were woven in Lyons, France, and made in Belgium, and hung upon a specially designed mechanism that permits them to be changed instantly to conform to the varying ecclesiastical feasts and seasons of the church year.

They are of royal purple, flame red, olive green and white.. The set was completed at a cost of $4,000.

Scully to Address Postal Men Tonight

John J. Scully, chairman of the trustees of the Joint Association of Postal Employes, will be the honor guest at a stag smoker in the German Beneficial Union Hall, Arlington avenue and Brownsville road, tonight. The meeting is to celebrate the recent gains in the association's fight for adequate retirement provisions for postal employes.

Julia Belle Swain, River Boat, Sold

James J. Martin has sold the river steamer Julia Belle Swain to Humphrey Morris, for a reported price of $21,000. It will be operated Saturdays and Sundays out of the Pittsburgh harbor.

SALVATIONISTS TALK ON 'FAITH'

Topics of seasonal interest will be discussed tomorrow in all services of the Salvation Army in the Pittsburgh district. At the 11 a. m. service in the Second avenue headquarters, Adjt. George Brooks will speak on "Faith." "The Way Home" will be the subject of the evening service.

At the Sunday school service at 2 p. m. "Nehemiah's Wise Leadership" will be discussed. The subject for the 6 p. m. meeting of the Young People's Legion will be "Urijah." Vocal and instrumental music will accompany all services.

Mace Announces Sunday Y Topic

HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY NOTES; NEW FILMS REVIEWED

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Platt

Success story: A young man who is not yet one week old may wonder why already he has a bank account of almost $100, and we're going to tell him why. Here' the son of Walter Harris, carpenter at the Allegheny General Hospital and when he arrived in this here world the clock said so many minutes after a certain hour.

William Platt

Well, the father was persuaded by two friends to play, as a hunch on the clearing house pool, the time of his son's arrival. The two friends did the same. The number hit. And each of the three contributed 10 per cent of their new riches to a savings account for Mr. Harris, Jr.

* * *

Abe Savage, one of the town's better known intelligentsia, will have an article in a forthcoming "College Humor" which will josh the folks who expect to get into the Cathedral of Learning soon. And men in the know say the complimentary article on Pittsburgh in "Fortune" was inspired by a Pittsburgh multi-millionaire oil executive.

* * *

While John Kane's pictures are soon to hit the art galleries of New York, Bill Shulgold is showing some pictures in the Corcoran gallery in Washington. Also, Kane will be one of 37 American painters to be represented for the first time at an exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

* * *

Most of the celebrities who play in recital here stay at the Schenley or are gobbled up by the social elite for house guests. But not Paderewski, ex-Polish premier. He has his private railroad car and carries his own house on wheels.

* * *

At Pitt, everyone's talking about Glady's Schmitt, the East Liberty 16-year-old, who writes poetry as—pros and other intellects say—a genius. She got a scholarship through "The Scholastic" in competition, and recently completed the manuscript of her second novel.

* * *

Tom Kenyon, son of the old theater man, thinks Ann Harding is that beautiful, too. Toy says that she could easily be a star piano recitalist, which is too much talent for any one woman to have.

Tom, Sr., once had a dog he had brought from Ireland. Sorrowing when the animal died, he left suddenly for the "old sod" to get another like him. The Black and Tans were policing Ireland at the time, and Tom, Sr., sat in a railroad station with an unlighted cigar in his mouth. The policeman came to him:

"No smoking is permitted here."

"I know that, and I'm not smoking," Tom answered.

"But you have a cigar in your mouth," the copper insisted.

"Aye, and I have shoes on me feet but I'm not walking."

* * *

There's a remarkable collection of old English china in Carnegie Museum and attendants will tell you that it's the property of a Negro ash man who, in the course of his duties, began to collect antiques and grew up from there.

* * *

Alex Kann, the matinee idol of amateur production in Pittsburgh these years, walked out a new pair of shoes on Broadway and finally landed in "The Lottery," with Junior Durkin, which opened last week in Atlantic City. And Jane Ellen Ball, who taught dramatics at Pitt and Knoxville, is playing with the Washington Square Art Guild in that old barn down on MacDougal street, in Greenwich Village. And Blossom Lomax, young artist with Ann Harding hair, plans spending her winter mornings sketching Pittsburgh's alleys, except the time out she takes watching heavy loads of steel go up on the new Gulf Building.

* * *

And strangely, that hand on Madame Picasso, prize winner of the International, which critics lament as "too big" has been painted over because it hasn't, like the rest of the picture, the hard surface that time gives to a completed job.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

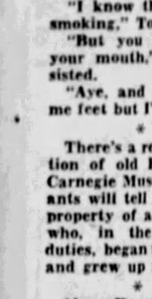
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Best speech made on Thanksgiving Day was the Prince of Wales before the Americans in London. He said:

"While the world is having trouble finding a reason for Thanksgiving, we English have one. We are thankful that Bobby Jones quit competitive golf." I call that pretty good the other outstanding event was in Chicago. Al Capone at his free restaurant was to give a turkey dinner to five thousand. Some rival gangster held up the trucks and stole one thousand of the dressed turkeys, that was the lowest trick they have pulled yet.



Will Rogers

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Popularity of Westerns Keeps Richard Arlen In Cowboy Films

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29.

Dick's Westerns are so popular throughout the land that Paramount won't let him get away from them. Film audiences also are partial to Mary as his leading woman.

Mary Brian

"The Westerner" is a story by William Slavens McNutt and Grover Jones. It relates the adventures of a cowboy who goes to the city and outwits a gang of racketeers. The picture will be Arlen's fifth Western this year.

I NOTE THAT—

Marlene Dietrich leaves Tuesday for Germany. She'll ship her shin' roadster back home to show to her husband and child . . . Joan Bennett and John Considine are indulging in a mad at each other . . . It may be settled by now, however . . . Josef Von Sternberg works so late that he has been dubbed with a new nickname—"Midnight Joe" . . . Reginald Denny and Harry Rapf can tell you all about ptomaine poisoning . . . Marie Dressler has gone to the desert to get rid of an attack of neuritis . . . Cecil B. De Mille had Thanksgiving dinner in the hospital . . . Grace Moore has finished the French version of "Jenny Lind," and is on her way East to fulfill concert engagements.

THE SILVER LINING

Another reason why they'll always sell oil stock is the case of George Duryea and Grace Stafford. This young Hollywood couple have been working now and then on screen and stage. Along came an oil salesman and persuaded them to invest their $400 savings in a well. Contrary to legend, the well came in a gusher, and the two players are assured an income of $1,000 a month.

Lily Damitia

The latest to be announced is "Romance," which Gretna Garbo did in English. There has been some talk of Grace Moore enacting this role, but her concert engagement intervened.

Lily also will do the French versions of Norma Shearer's "The Divorcee" and "Let Us Be Gay."

Court Approves Bank Assets Sale

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 29.—The Belmont County Court today approved the sale of assets of the defunct Dollar Savings Bank to the First National Bank, which is to credit depositors of the former with approximately $250,000 December 11. The remaining 40 per cent due depositors will be paid, according to state bank authorities, when loans on real estate are collected.

In Person

Eddie Quillan appears on the Stanley stage in person. He's also seen on the screen in "Big Money."

MR. QUILLAN DANCES AND GAMBLES IN THE STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The Stanley is presenting a double dose of Eddie Quillan. He's doing the personal appearance act on the stage. And on the screen he's a bank messenger who rides an elevator into a crap game and easy money.

The picture is titled "Big Money." It is another of those yarns about the gambling racket. But it treats its theme in a bright and comedy vein, which is a refreshing departure for Hollywood. The melodramatics do creep in, however. A welching gambler is "bumped off" in a hotel room.

A LUCKY FELLOW

Eddie wisecracks his way through the film. He has a romance with his boss' daughter, he plays Santa Claus and he goes to jail. And Lady Luck sits right on his lap all the way through. He wins at dice, poker and on the race tracks. He's lucky in love at the fadeout, also.

Robert Armstrong and Jimmie Gleason are prominent in the cast. Miriam Seegar and Margaret Livingston are present as girl friends.

On the stage Mr. Quillan affects a nervous pose and tumbles through some goofy dance steps. He's a likeable little fellow. And he doesn't tell any stories about Hollywood places or people. Which is something novel in movie personal-appearances.

SONG BY MR. LOWRY

The stage show is titled "Masquerade." Ed Lowry, as usual, keeps to the center of things as master of ceremonies. He goes in for another sentimental song—this time one with the home-sweet-home theme. We understood him to say he wrote it himself.

Other entertainers include a slapstick trio that gets wearisome and the Three Blue Blazes who do some speedy stepping. Also there's a fellow who jumps in, out and about a whirling rope.

POLITICIANS SPOOFED IN REVUE BY GUILD

A skit about Pittsburgh officeholders, including Mayor Kline, will be a feature of "Garrick Gaieties," revue sponsored by the New York Theater Guild, which will come to the Nixon stage Monday night. "Garrick Gaieties" is not included in the Guild subscription plays.

"June Moon," a comedy, will be the attraction in the Shubert-Alvin Theater beginning next Monday. Harry Rosenthal is cast in the role of Maxie, a song arranger. The cast includes Edith Van Cleve, Frank Otto, Ruth Abbott, Frank Conlon, Elaine Temple, Patricia Chapman, Milano Tilden, Ross Hertz, Fred Irving Lewis, Adeline Ogilvie and Thomas Gillen.

Bert Lytell does a dual-role characterization in "Brothers," opening on the Harris screen today, with Dorothy Sebastian heading the supporting cast. Five acts will be presented in the vaudeville program.

"Hi Ho Everybody," a new burlesque, opens in the Academy Sunday night with a midnight show. "Congo," with South Sea dancing girls, and "Cinderella," a ballet, are principal scenes.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, by Walter Winchell.)

To Any Stranger
Come down to Broadway once or twice a year,
There's only one Broadway—you'll find it here—
The shops, the lights, the glamour of the mob,
The breathless tang and zip that's in the air
Will buoy you up and make your pulses throb—
No wonder Broadway's famous ev'rywhere.

Come down to Broadway once or twice a year—
But bring a load of green along with you,
For gold's the only passport needed here,

If you're from Frisco, New Orleans or Nome—
—Young Man of Manhattan.

Just for the Pun of It

Making up sentences with certain words still remain one of the most amusing parlor pastimes. They were cleverly toying with puns again last night. The name of Sessue Hayakawa came up and someone remembered how Woollcott once used it:

"Hayakawa keep 'em down on the farm?" And F. P. A. clowned with Theophelis, viz: "That was the Theophelis book I ever read;"

Then this: "That was no lady, Arizona my wife!"

And: "She drinks Anticipates terribly!"

It was decided, too, that the most famous is "Sanctuary much for the buggy ride," and that one of the cleverest contains the word Meretricious—like this:,

"Meretricious and a Happy New Year!"

However—

"Jack congeal went up the heel."

Fancy That!

George Jean Nathan, one of the drah-mah's bet-tah undertakers, has another complaint. This time it concerns the British play-ahs, who come ov-ah heah, and imagine that if they talk Brittish it will make them appeah clev-ah.

Mr. Nathan recently denounced them in Judge:

"It would not be a bad idea," he wrote, "if the producers who import English actors instructed them during the voyage that rather is not pronounced rawther, part is not pronounced pot, lovely is not lahvly, and dear is not deah."

Eb-so-loot-lay!

Suggested for the Simile Dictionary: E. H. G.'s:

"As carefully read as an unfavorable notice."

Character

Among other interesting things you hear about "Diamond Jim" Brady, the most renowned spender of his time, was that he was a taffy fiend. And that when he went to a First Night he always brought a box of candy with him and purchased a box of sweets for his friends so that they wouldn't take any of his.

Brady, incidentally, is said to have been the first to complain about a cabaret couvert charge (which was 25 cents at Reisenweber's) and the first man to put real diamonds in a girl's shoe heels.

Nifties

Newspaperman Stuff

Fred Donaghey, formerly the drama defender for a Chicago rag, had a mad on with Walter Duggan, an expert exploiter. They tell of the time when "The Gorilla" played Chicago, and all the reviewers liked the show except Donaghey. He not only spanked it, but ignored it in his daily department, which drove Mr. Duggan, the press agent, a little daffy.

A few evenings later, Ashton Stevens, another reviewer, was chatting with Mrs. Fred Donaghey between the acts of a new play. He introduced the critic's squaw to Duggan.

"This is the press agent," said Ashton, "of 'The Gorilla.'" . . .

"Oh," oh'd Mrs. Donaghey, "I loved that play. It thrilled me so!"

The next day every Chicago rag, including the one on which Donaghey worked, carried this huge advertisement:

Merciless Truth

Civic Pride

Since it was chronicled here recently that the three busiest corners in the world were Seventh and Broadway, Los Angeles; Hyde Park Corner, London, and Forty-second street and Vth avenue, N. Y. C., several Chambers of Commerce have lifted their eyebrows.

Robert H. Nau, secretary street traffic committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, writes:

"I noted in the Chicago Evening American about the most congested intersections. If it is not too much trouble, please forward the statistics bearing out this information."

We refer Mr. Nau to Mr. Frederic J. Haskins, whose book, published by Grossett & Dunlap, contains the data.

Even Newark, N. J., has a corner busier than any in Chicago.

Scene

It is said of Charles Dillingham, the producer, that he is the only show sponsor who never asks his troupes to accept cuts in wages to keep a play going. Only once did Dillingham ask a cast to accept the wage-shave. One actor refused.

Yesterday Mr. Dillingham hailed a cab and after driving 60 cents' worth he handed the driver a dollar, and told him to keep the change.

"Thanks, very much, Mr. Dillingham," said the cabman.

"How do you know my name?" asked the Times Squareguy.

"I was the fellow," was the reply, "who practically decided you to close that show because I refused to take a cut. Now, Looka."

Pardon Their Lorgnettes

The Social Register, it appears, is compiled by a committee of a dozen or more or less folk who are "terribly social." Money doesn't matter with them. If you have social distinction and you are broke, you may crash the tome. If you marry an actress or you marry an author (as Eleanor Hutton did) you may be dropped. Lists are sent out annually to the committee by the publisher. They elect or blackball as their whims dictate.

The committee is changed annually so that none on the board will know the identity of the others who served in the same capacity. A chap named Charlie Lindbergh, who flew to Paris because (as he once told a pal) if he won the $25,000 prize he could open a garage in St. Louis, is now in the Social Register.

Trip to Hollywood Film Review Prize

Loew's Penn Theater is going to give some Pittsburgh resident an opportunity to fly to Hollywood. "Hell's Angels," aviation picture, is being shown in the Penn, and the writer of the best review on the picture, 50 words or less, will be awarded a round-trip to Hollywood, via the new Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., lines. Fifty pairs of tickets for the Penn will be given to the next best answers. The winner of the Hollywood trip will visit the United Artists studio in Hollywood.

The judges of the contest will be G. R. Hann, president of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation; Bedell Monro, director of the Penn School of Aviation; R. W. Robbins, director of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, and H. M. Addison, managing director of Loew's Penn. Reviews are to be sent to the Contest Editor, care Loew's Penn.

BURNING ZEPPELIN IS STELLAR ACTOR IN 'HELL'S ANGELS'

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A Zeppelin clearing the clouds, dropping bombs on London, then pursued by British airplanes and brought down in flames, is the star actor in "Hell's Angels," spectacular film drama at the Penn.

George Seibel

There are other actors, many of them, but none is nearly as good as the Zeppelin.

After the air raid on London comes another episode in cloudland. This is an airplane raid on German munitions depot. In the course of this raid the depot is blown up and scores of airplanes engaged in furious combat. Every now and then one of them is shot down and makes a nose dive for earth, till it gets monotonous.

REGULAR WAR DRAMA

Outside of the aerial circus, "Hell's Angels" is just a regular war drama. Plot and dialogue are mediocre, and helped out with a good bit of horseplay, smashed dishes and spilled soup.

There's a high-minded hero in love with a girl who is just a cheap flapper, and the high-minded hero has a brother who is yellow all through. There's a ball after which the flapper goes off with the yellow brother, and later she is chief flirt in a canteen. The yellow brother is shot by the heroic one to keep him from telling the British plans to the German general.

Anybody but that German general could have guessed the British plans if he knew anything about scenario writing.

WELL, THIS IS WAR

We also know by now the armies spend most of their time in drunken orgies and fits of nerves. This is war! Anybody who has seen "Journey's End" and "All Quite on the Western Front" knows all about it.

But some of those air combats in "Hell's Angels" are really thrilling and very well staged. The Zep is the hero of the show.

This even abridged other parts of the program, so that Oscar played nothing but "Baby's Birthday Party." The Dodge Twins dance and whistle a sort of nightingales' courtship, and the Four Devals do some thrilling acrobatics. As for the Chester Hale Girls, costumed as birds of varied plummage, they have rarely been more prettily gowned and lighted. Which was a pleasant relief from the horrors of war.

M'LAGLEN SOLDIERS AGAIN IN FILM IN ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Victor McLaglen is soldiering again. This time he's down in some South American country—no telling what one—pursuing a bandit chief and a fair senorita.

His new film is titled "A Devil With Women" and it is the Aldine booking.

A lot of shooting, galloping and a love song or so consume much of the film. Then there is the inevitable fiesta.

Mr. McLaglen is, of course, the great big he-man hero. With a "sock" on the chin he's always knocking someone down. But, with all this "manly" display, the girl is not for him at the finale. However, sympathy isn't in order. He gets a war in China instead.

Just why the movie-makers call this film "A Devil With Women" isn't so evident unless it sounds to them like a box office name.

Supporting players include Mona Maris and Humphrey Bogart.

14,330 Ballots Cast In Venango County

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 29.—Tabulation of votes has been completed by the clerks in the County Commissioners' office, showing that a total of 14,330 ballots were cast in the November election. An election with 11,000 or 12,000 votes cast is considered a large one in this district, indicating the thorough interest that Venango County had in the issues at stake and the candidates seeking office.

On one of the final days of this exciting Thanksgiving week, it's confusing trying to decide what to talk about, the Cinderella ball last night, or debutante tea dances, or plans for the coming days. And one usually ends in praising everything a little bit.

Anyway before I start talking about the many, many smart gowns and smart folks I saw at the Cinderella ball last night, I want to talk about a debut. The Benjamin Rush Townsends are giving a tea dance this afternoon in the Allegheny Country Club to present their neice, Barbara Perry Irwin, daughter of Henry Taylor Irwin.

* * *

Lovely Costumes

The slender, blonde debutante looks striking in an exquisite gown of turquoise blue chiffon velvet, fashioned with a notably long skirt and cream lace puff sleeves. Her aunt is wearing a deep, wine-colored crepe Elizabeth gown and a corsage of orchids.

And there are ever so many sister buds aiding the debutante, and many social leaders aiding Mrs. Townsend.

And before I start talking about who was at the Cinderella ball I want to add that Mrs. Charles Layng Doyle and her daughter, Rebecca, will give a luncheon on Wednesday for Barbara in their home.

Dancing At Ball

Young folks, and older folks, and members of the school set were represented at the Cinderella ball last night in the University Club. And when the hour of midnight struck, the assemblage looked just as smart as ever, and many more folks were arriving, and no one was leaving. For no longer does the committee plan on having the annual dance end at Cinderella's fateful hour.

Around midnight the debutantes, aided by a few of their elders, gave a revue. There was a chorus of smartly blase French dolls, wearing black velvet and cloth of silver, and intriguing wigs, and the dolls were Frances Kier, Helen Tunnell, Betty McKay, Barbara Irwin, Harriet La Salle Dorrance, Hester Browne, Martha Leggate and Elizabeth Childs. Later, the girls sold French dolls wearing similar costumes.

Then came a parade of glorified peasant costumes; Adele Lippincott was a Dutch girl; her sister, Mariana, a Russian; Madelaine Alexander, French; Nancy Scott Craig, Oriental, and Jane Marshall, a most intriguing Hula Hula girl.

As a surprise there was a Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Childs III, the junior H. H. McClintics, Mr. and Mrs. Alan S. Humphreys, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, Marjorie Kimball, Porter Gillespie, Evelyn Evans and Wilfrid Murtland wearing gingham gowns and overalls and straw sun hats.

Colorful Gathering

I caught a glimpse early in the evening of Marjorie Kimball, chairman of this year's ball, with her arms full of French dolls. And she looked as smart as they did in a sky blue crepe gown with novel reveres of the same material distinguishing the decolletage of the gown. The skirt was godeted to give below-the-knee fullness. Marjorie Gethoefer, vice chairman, and president of the Board, chose a smart black crepe gown with a tiered skirt. Mrs. Sydney A. Stewart and Mrs. J. Shirley Austin looked more alike than ever last night, for both the sisters wore identical gowns of turquoise blue satin and silver.

Red Is Popular

A striking gown of red velvet was chosen by Neil Stewart Zang; chartreuse satin by Mrs. Reginald G. Quaile; black crepe by Mrs. Frederick Gwinner, III; black lace by Suzanne Armstrong, house guest of her sister, Mrs. B. R. Shriver; bronze lame and tulle by Margret Brill, and flame satin by Louise Evans.

Mrs. A. P. Brill was there, and Sylvia Robertson in black satin, Frances Forsyth in white satin, and Harriet Pickes in white lace were selling cigarets.

Mrs. George H. Love wore brocaded cloth of gold; Mrs. Raymond P. Moreland, black lace with a bolero jacket; Mrs. John H. K. Burgwin, Burgundy crepe; Mrs. Frank A. Leovy, black chiffon; Mrs. Charles D. Marshall, black velvet; Mrs. Lawrence Allderdice, flame chiffon; Emily Frew, green crepe; Mary McClung, eggshell lace; Mrs. James McKay, periwinkle crepe; Helen Pendleton, blue crepe; Helen McCance, rose crepe; Evelyn Evans, oak rose lace and tulle, with large bows of green velvet; Mrs. Roberdeau Green Annan, eggshell lace; Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, peach satin; Mrs. Walter Carroll, black chiffon and Mrs. Frank Kier, black lace.

Church Wedding

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore wood-brown chiffon with a hat to match, and carried coral and bronze tea roses. Her only attendant, Miss Helen Thompson, wore wine red crepe with a hat to match and carried yellow tea roses. John Rich was his brother's best man, and Mrs. Fry played the wedding music. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Rich will be at home in Pittsburgh.

BEIGE COSTUME PRESCRIBED FOR THE JADED WARDROBE

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Beige may not be the rage that it was, but just the same it is a hue to be reckoned with, We were told earlier in the season that beige was not to flaunt its colors in the sartorial breeze. But women who are fond of beige have been steadily ordering outfits in their favorite shade and so most houses are showing it even if they are not particularly featuring it.

Beige is one of the most delightful hues and lends itself gracefully to an entire outfit. It is not as delicate as it looks and the ethereal air that it bestows is most gratifying to almost every type. It is an all-the-year-around shade and is good in almost every type of material from chiffon to woolen. A beige costume is one of the best tonics that can be prescribed for a jaded wardrobe.

* * *

PATOU IS FOND of beige just as Molyneax is partial to misty grays and so he made the tailored street frock, here shown, of beige. It is of kasha and is belted just above the hips. It buttons down the center of the front. Wide, slightly circular godets at each side give a moderate flare to the skirt. The smart little scarf collar and the edging of the buttoned lower sleeve are of matching broadtail.

* * *

BLACK AND WHITE is still the beloved color combination and is so much to the fore for evening wear. Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the popular French ambassador to Washington, has taken back with her to that capital some most delightful frocks. Among them is a lovely Worth model which we were privileged to have sketched for you. It is cleverly designed; over a bodice of black chiffon velvet is placed a deep bertha of starched white chiffon which dips in a V at the back, crosses in narrowing ends and ties in a large sash bow at the side back. The diagonal ruffles which form the skirt are of alternating bands of the black velvet and white chiffon.

BELL CO. LISTS STATION COSTS

It will cost the Bell Telephone Company $105,000 to remove six cables containing 9,300 telephone wires, provided the Public Service Commission approves the proposed terminal plans of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to which nine public utility concerns object. That was brought out before the commission yesterday by J. T. Isles, division planning engineer for the Bell interests.

The contract for the terminal entered into between the City of Pittsburgh and the railroad provides for the vacation of certain streets and relocation of others. If the railroad carries out the improvements as provided, the telephone cables in Spring way, which serve the Lawrenceville, Millvale, Aspinwall, Glenshaw, East Liberty and other districts must be removed. The railroad company has made no provision to pay the utility concerns for $1,080,000 damages being asked. E. C. Stone, assistant development manager for the Duquesne Light Company, testified it will cost his company, the Allegheny Steam Heating Company and the Equitable Gas Company $225,000 to change their facilities. The Pittsburgh Railways Company claim $750,000.

Taking of testimony, it was announced, will be concluded next Friday before Commissioners Samuel Walker and Charles H. Young.

U. S. Pays 10-Year Claim of Panama

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Ten years of negotiation ended here with payment by the United States of $160,000 for a portion of the land used in coast defense of the Panama Canal.

The Treasury Department checks were turned over to Alfredo Aleman, of Panama City, an heir of the Bermudez family, of Panama, who acted for the other heirs.

The property was confiscated by the United States for building the canal. It was known as Punta Paitilla.

Problem Parent Discussed At Friday Morning Club's Meeting

Behind every problem child is a problem parent, and a great deal of trouble arising in modern education is due to a problem parent, or two of them, John Langdon-Davies, English author, said in a brilliant and witty address with which he opened the Friday Morning Club season in Carnegie Music Hall yesterday.

Mr. Landon-Davies had for his subject "Problem Parents and the Unadjusted Mother." This he discussed from a richly and elaborately decorated stage, a new feature which is to be a regular one for the Friday Morning Club this year. The speaker criticised what he termed some of the things most parents think are necessary for the education of their children. In this age of specialization, mass-production and standardization, a plant can no more easily be produced by such methods than can an educated human being, he said, adding that much the same methods are being employed in education as are used in a Ford factory.

Part of education, he emphasized, is to find out how people of two different generations and with different ideas of good and evil can get along comfortably together. He is not sure, he said, that the child of today is any happier than the child of 20 years ago, although many parents are fuller of conscience with regard to their children and therefore regard themselves as superior parents. Modern education is not always a setting up of new and intelligent ideas, but a reaction to something that hurt the older generation — parents are apt to give their children blisters from too large shoes because their own shoes were too tight, he observed.

No child ought to be happy and always noiseless, he went on, and he should be given a place of his own where he can be both dirty and noisy. On the other hand, distance should be lengthened for adults and the noises of the street should be removed.

Further he said, there is no good in pretending that the important part of education can be put on anyone else. In the last analysis, education is a form of friendship, a part of the art of love. Most parents underestimate the amount their children want to learn. All the hobbies have been put in the curriculum and all the subjects taken out. Few homes have the atmosphere of adventure in the pursuit of knowledge and too many schools feel that if they have several million dollars' worth of buildings they have a school.

MOVIES TO AID POOR FUND

Three movie theaters, Beechview, Boggs Avenue and the Brookline, will donate receipts of the performance next Monday to the Nineteenth Ward charity fund, according to Sergt. James W. Eagan, of Mt. Washington Police Station, one of the officers of the fund. The Shiloh Theater will hold a special midnight performance December 14 for benefit of the fund, Eagan said. The fund is used to aid needy families of the district.

Teachers Ask Pupils Gifts go to Needy

More than 1,000 pupils in the McNaugher, Linwood and Milroy schools, North Side, have been asked by William W. DeShong, principal of the three schools, and the faculties, to forego their usual gifts to teachers this Christmas and make donations to the needy. The plan was suggested by the teachers, and Principal DeShong posted notices in the buildings asking co-operation of the pupils.

McGovern's Son Weds Miss Harper Today

Charles C. McGovern, Jr., son of County Commissioner McGovern, is to be married this afternoon to Miss Ruth Harper, of Weirton, Pa. The ceremony is to take place in the Harper home with only a few friends and relatives present. In applying for a license yesterday, young McGovern said he was aged 23 and that he worked in the County Treasurer's office. The bride is aged 20.

Clan-na-Gael Holds Memorial Tomorrow

The thirty-ninth annual memorial for Manchester martyrs will be held tomorrow night in Hibernian Hall, Second avenue, Hazelwood, by the Clan-na-Gael of Western Pennsylvania. Following the class initiation there will be a lunch and song and story hour, with an address by Prof. Patrick Cronin, of Duquesne University. James M. Kelly also will speak.

3 Families Flee Fire In Milford St. House

Members of three families were routed from their homes when flames damaged the three-story apartment house at 7600 Milford street early today. A dozen persons, all Negroes, fled to the street when smoke filled the upper floors. The fire was confined to the basement and caused $1,500 damage, according to police estimate.

'BUGS' BAER ON AIR TONIGHT

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—People may continue to poke a derisive finger at the crooners, but it has always seemed to me that the crooners were the first to recognize the value of voice as a means of raising themselves to the stature of household gods.

The crooners were the first to extend their conquests across the continent. Because of them the old familiar cry "the voice with the smile wins" gave way to "the voice with the sex appeal wins."

* * *

The crooners, alas, were not content with a reasonable victory or a reasonable show of numbers. They swarmed before the microphones in army strength. They recruited their hosts from every walk of life. Aviation, the law, medicine, the cloistered halls of post-graduate schools contributed to the enlistment. And the enrollment goes on. There seems ever to be room for one more crooner. Unemployment does not stalk their ranks, despite the growing public indifference to them.

* * *

Crooners Now Deemed Necessary Evil

Their persistence at the microphones would indicate that the public now considers them a necessary evil, like the ballyhoo of the commercial programs. Yet, there are signs that certain maestros who sound invitations to the dance are seeking new ways to win the eardrums. B. A. Rolfe, for example, has gone in for sopranos. Senor Lopez has marshaled a quartet, and Paul Whiteman relies upon torch singers and the massed vocal cords of his entire band.

* * *

It was a crooning voice, of course, that established the vogue of the M. Vallee and to a lesesr extent the vogue of Will Osborne. I wonder if it wouldn't have helped Jack Johnson in his career as a dance maestro. One brief pathetic whirl under the Broadway tent for Johnson, and the rest was silence.

* * *

I never think of Johnson that I don't recall him in his sad pose as a dance director, futilely waving a baton over the unheeding horn-tooters of his ensemble and seeking to win one last and glamorous measure of public devotion.

Radio was not for him, for in the passing of the years he had lost not only his once superb sense of timing, but his equally superb sense of showmanship.

In attempting to lead a jazz band amid the fierce and ceaseless competition of Broadway, Johnson seemed to be aware of the hard work he cut out for himself. He knew little of music, but he did know that he had to keep his baton moving. The nervous strain of keeping time was evident in his face. Save for an occasional rolling of the whites of his eyes there was none of his old-time good-nature.

VETERAN SCRIBE FETED AT FEAST

John P. Cowan, veteran newspaper reporter, was honored at a testimonial dinner last night in the Hotel Roosevelt by more than 300 persons, including city and county officials and members of the editorial staffs of the local papers. The dinner was tendered as a farewell to Cowan, who goes to Washington next week to become secretary to Congressman Edmund F. Erk.

Mark Shields introduced the toastmaster, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, a former newspaperman. Among the speakers were Shields, Dwight H. Fee, Congressman Harry A. Estep, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, President of Council John S. Herron, Frank J. Lanahan, Attorney Ralph H. Smith, former Councilman P. J. McArdle, James F. Malone and State Senator W. D. Mansfield.

$2,500 Fire Ties Up Downtown Traffic

Damage estimated at $2,500 resulted from a fire which broke out in the Seidel Sign Shop, on the second floor of 211 Smithfield street, and tied up traffic for 30 minutes last night.

The flames had spread to the third floor, occupied by Heiser & Wood Company, when firemen forced their way into the building. Stock in Mane's loan office on the first floor also was damaged, it was said. The loss was estimated by Battalion Chief George Sparr.

Braddock Brothers Hurt in Auto Smash

Charles Balsinger, 52, and his brother, George, 50, both of Braddock, today were nursing cuts and bruises suffered when an automobile in which they were riding skidded and crashed against a pole at Broad and Station streets last night. The machine was driven, police said, by James Harrington, 29, of 1200 North St. Clair street.

Overbrook Youth Hurt, Falls 40 Feet

Frida Leider will sing the title role and is known both by the name of Fidelio and Leonore. Leonore is the wife of Florestan, a Spanish nobleman, who is imprisoned because he has incurred the enmity of Don Pizarro, governor of the state prison.

Don Pizarro announces that Florestan is dead and Leonore, refusing to believe it, disguises herself as a lad and makes love to Marzelline, daughter of Rocco, the jailer, to gain access to the prison.

She overhears Pizarro plotting with Rocco to kill a mysterious prisoner before the arrival of Don Fernanda, minister of the interior, who is to investigate the harsh methods used in the prison. With Rocco, Fidelio is assigned the task of digging her own husband's grave.

When the prisoner is brought in she at first fails to recognize him, but when Pizarro tries to stab the man Leonore scorns her disguise and throws herself between them. Pizarro is about to kill them both when Don Fernando arrives and they are rescued.

Pizarro is punished and the other prisoners released, which affords an opportunity for Beethoven's "Prisoner's Chorus."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the keynote of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT SLIPS

Decline in Tonnage Rate For Three Months 30%; Further Fall Expected

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Steel ingot production has slipped a couple points this week, to a rate scarcely above 40 per cent of January 1 capacity, or somewhat under 40 per cent of prospective capacity when present building is completed. Production is at about 26,000,000 tons a year, which compares with an average rate of 48,000,000 tons in the first half of this year and actual production last year of 54,850,000 tons. Total production in a year did not reach 26,000,000 tons until 1912, but since then only 1914 and 1921 have been under that figure.

There has been a practically continuous decrease in the tonnage rate in the last three months, totaling about 30 per cent. With the present rate of buying, some further decrease is to be expected in the next couple weeks, while in the remainder of the year the usual seasonal influence is certain to make a further decrease.

1931 PROSPECTS

It becomes all the clearer that there will be the regular seasonal upturn after January 1, which is practically certain to be sharp viewed in a percentage way, but there is absolutely no visible prospect of a really fair rate being reached. March is commonly the high month of the year in production and there is no apparent likelihood of next March showing a 60 per cent rate. From general considerations it seems quite possible that next year will depart altogether from seasonal precedent and show slowly rising production perhaps throughout the year.

In the last three months there have been occasional predictions that prices of certain steel products would advance, but the only favorable turn in prices has been the stiffening of bars, shapes and plates to a level of 1.60c, previously quoted as the general market, but subject to some shading in bars and rather deep and irregular cutting in plates and shapes. In the past week there appeared a curious prediction that steel prices in general would rise shortly, whereas according to all steel market practice prices were already settled for deliveries extending through the first quarter of next year.

BUYERS PROTECTED

Of course various advances could be "announced" but they would not be effective as to prices realized on shipments through the first quarter. They might be made for the purpose of driving in contract tonnage and making a basis for actual advances on second quarter shipments. It is the practice of the trade that when a given price has been made available to some buyers for a quarter all large buyers are protected.

The 1.60c price on bars, shapes and plates has not been specifically announced for first quarter, but it is obvious that large buyers could not be expected to pay a higher price on their first quarter deliveries. One should also consider the point that frequently in these things there has been "a final dip" before these heavy rolled products started on a general advance.

As to sheets and strips, it was noted a week ago that prices had been announced for first quarter. None of these prices represented an advance, while on automobile sheets and cold rolled strips the prices announced are $2 a ton below those commonly regarded hitherto as the general market.

SOVIET WHEAT DUMPING

In the face of the outcry against the dumping of commodities by Russia on foreign markets, the Alexander Hamilton Institute's current Weekly points out that Russia's share in world export trade is only 1.2 per cent as contrasted with 4 per cent in 1913; its share in world import trade only 1.5 per cent as contrasted with 3.3 per cent. Furthermore, half the exports are oil and lumber.

During the fiscal year 1928-29, out of total imports of $414,000,000 import of machinery, industrial as well as agricultural is forced to pay for these imports in cash, and in order to obtain the foreign exchange, Russia is exporting commodities which are greatly need at home and at the price much lower than the price prevailing at home.

To say that Russia's dumping is affecting the American market is unsound, for an analysis of the figures of Russian exports to the United States shows not only that they are very small but that the amount of these exports is less than one-third of total imports of Russia from the United States. With the growth of industry in the country and with the increase in the industrial population, Russia will be forced to provide more food and materials for the domestic market and this in itself will be the greatest check in Russian dumping.

Streams So Low Fish Die from Lack of Feed

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Nov. 29.—In every section of Centre County farmers, fearful that it will winter up without a hard rainfall are drilling for water in order to stave off a possible water famine. Most of the streams in the county are lower than they have ever been before.

In some of them fish are dying by the hundreds for lack of sufficient water to afford them ample feeding space. A few of the larger streams which are fed entirely by never-failing springs have so far shown little effect from the long drought.

LOANS DECLINE $63,000,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(INS.)—Brokers' loans declined $63,000,000 during the week ended November 26 to a total of $2,122,000,000, according to the weekly report of the Federal Reserve Board.

This marks the ninth consecutive weekly decrease since September 24, during which time borrowings have been deflated $1,100,000,000. The present total constitutes a new low record since compilation of these figures was started in 1926 and compares with $2,185,000,000 a week ago and $3,450,000,000 a year ago.

BANK DEBITS TAKE GAIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Weekly business indicators available to the Commerce Department for the week ended November 22, 1930, show that increases occurred over the preceding week in the volume of bank debits, outside New York City, loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks, the average prices paid for representative stocks and bonds and the Federal Reserve ratio. Declines from the previous period were noted in cotton receipts at principal markets while interest rates for both call and time money showed no change. As compared with a year ago decreases occurred in almost every instance with the exception of bond prices and the reserve ratio.

Wholesale prices in general, as measured by the weekly index of 120 principal commodities were fractionally off from a week ago. The price of red winter wheat showed an increase over last week's level, while the price of middling cotton at New York, and iron and steel prices declined slightly. As contrasted with wholesale prices of a year ago declines without exception occurred.

J. H. Holmes & Co. Stock Average

At closing market prices of November 25, 1930, 100 active listed, dividend paying common stocks, recently compiled by J. H. Holmes & Co., showed average price equal to 11.52 times five-year average earnings and a dividend yield of 5.66 per cent.

Children Find 'Tickletoes' Doll Best Christmas Gift

Dear Little Girls:

From now on we all get the real Christmas spirit. The stores are full of it—the air is full of it. Pretty soon the holly wreaths and the Star of Bethlehem will begin to shine in the windows of the homes. With Thanksgiving gone, Yuletide preparations commence. Little girls begin to think about new dollies, and I'm mighty glad that I am here to make so many happy with my "Tickletoes." Every little girl who gets one of these lovable, adorable, smiling "Tickletoes" will have all she really wants for Christmas, because this dolly is so big and so different that she will take all the time and attention any little girl has to spare.

Of course "Tickletoes" is beautifully dressed in organdie, has a becoming bonnet, pretty little shoes and stockings and underclothes. But there isn't any little girl who will be satisfied with one dress for her dolly—she'll want two or three. If she gets a "Tickletoes" now she'll have time, with the help of mamma or sister, to make a lot of new clothes for "Tickletoes" before Christmas.

"Tickletoes," you know, is really a wonder doll. She is nearly 20 inches tall, is unbreakable, has laughing eyes, a pink complexion, dimpled knees and rubber arms and legs so that you can give her a bath when she needs it. She has three separate and distinct voices. She can clasp her hands, play with her toes and suck her thumbs. Of course, that isn't a very pretty thing to do, but all babies do it, don't they?

I am asking all the little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity to do something for me that is real easy. If they'll all do it, I'll give each of them a "Tickletoes" all for their very own. If you are a very, very little girl you'll have to have the help of mother, dad or sister but they'll find it so easy to get "Tickletoes" for you that they will probably want to start right in and get another "Tickletoes" for someone else before Christmas.

Now, little girls, if you have your heart set on getting one of my wonder "Tickletoes" dollies clip the coupon, fill it in and send it to your friend, the

WORKS BUREAU SAVES COUNTY FUNDS

New Office Building Soon To Be Put in Service; Many Projects Finished

By JAMES B. SANSOM,
Secretary, Allegheny County Planning Commission.

One of the outstanding reforms inaugurated by the County Commissioners of Allegheny County when the present administration took hold of affairs in 1924 was the abolition of the system under which huge fees were paid out to engineers and architects, many of them from other parts of the country. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved to the county annually in fees, by the establishment of the county bureau of architecture as a part of the county department of public works and the elimination of architectural fees, and by the adoption of a similar policy in the matter of bridge building.

Stanley L. Roush, county architect, has directed the work of the bureau since its inception; has successfully completed the planning and construction supervision work, totaling $2,149,670.66, in the first six years, ending with 1929, and has practically completed, during 1930, $2,971,721.94 in contract work, most of which has been in connection with the new county office building, soon to be put in service.

OTHER PROJECTS

Among the major projects completed, in addition to this building, were the alterations to the Courthouse, improvements and alterations in the county jail, removal of the county morgue to its new location, and improvement of that structure; construction of pylons at the terminals of the new county bridges, reconstruction of old hospital at Parkview into jail annex; plans for new juvenile courthouse, renovation of Soldier's Memorial Hall, construction of new county garage, building of division headquarters of the road maintenance forces and construction of buildings on the aviation fields and airport, and for the asphalt plants and bridge repair headquarters.

The bureau of architecture has under its supervision the preparation of architectural designs and plans for new bridges and buildings and for all alterations of old buildings, construction and alteration contracts for buildings. The bureau of architects is headed by a county architect and includes a supervisor of building construction and the necessary drafting and office force.

Real Estate

Louis Merwitzer, Dormont builder, has conveyed a new brick apartment building of 17 suites of four and five rooms each in Illinois avenue, Dormont, occupying 60x100 feet, to Edward D. White. In exchange White deeded to Merwitzer a row of 14 brick houses of four rooms each at Harrison and Oakgrove avenues, Swissvale, occupying 200x79 feet, the property at 2015-17-19 Knott street, North Side, improved with a six-family apartment building, dwelling at 4415 Lucerne street and dwelling in Rolla street. The deal was consummated through the Union Real Estate Company, represented by A. J. Aberman and Thomas C. Christo. The same company has been retained as renting agent.

An irregular plot in West Carson street, Twentieth Ward, between Main and Steuben streets, has been sold for $95,000 by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company to the City of Pittsburgh. The property was acquired by the city to provide space for the ramp of the West End-North Side Bridge.

A seven-room brick English type house at 46 Hoodridge avenue, Mt. Lebanon, has been bought by Frederick W. Sippell, insurance broker, from Pete Donati, South Hills contractor. The house occupies 90x245 feet.

The Braddock Trust Company has deeded an improved property in Whitney avenue, Wilkinsburg, to Joseph Daiber for $8,200. The lot is 26x78 feet.

HEARST STOCK PAYS REGULAR DIVIDEND

Directors Order Disbursement On 7 Pct. Participating A And Also Common Shares

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—Regular dividend on the seven per cent participating class A stock of Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., was declared today by the board of directors. This dividend amounts to 1¾ per cent, or, at the rate of seven per cent annually. At the same time the regular dividend of 43¾ cents a share was declared on the common stock of the company.

The books will be closed on December 1, and checks will be mailed to reach stockholders on the 15th.

As the 7 per cent participating Class A stock is widely held by individuals in all parts of the United States, this action of the board of directors will make available just before Christmas, to a widely scattered group, a considerable sum of money.

SECOND DIVIDEND

It is the second dividend to be paid on this stock as Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., was formed in the early part of 1930, to take over and consolidate 10 of the largest and most profitable of the daily newspapers controlled by William Randolph Hearst.

In addition, the group includes the American News Print Company, and the American Weekly, a Sunday magazine section with the greatest circulation of any periodical in the world.

At the time of incorporation a plan of customer-employe ownership through the 7 per cent participating stock was decided upon, and, following that plan, this issue was offered to the public through the various newspaper enterprises of Mr. Hearst in all parts of the United States. Knowing the history of successful and profitable operations of these newspapers, the public was quick to acclaim this plan and to subscribe for the stock in large blocks.

PARTIAL PAYMENTS

The small investor, however, who desired to create a fund for himself by investing small amounts regularly in a company with whose history he was familiar, was not provided for. In September, therefore, the board of directors agreed to allow those who so desired to purchase the 7 per cent stock on the partial payment plan. This action, according to officials of the company, has served not only to increase tremendously the number of stockholders but to encourage the salaried man to save a portion of his salary regularly and thus build for himself a reserve fund.

While the earnings report for 1930 will not be available until after the turn of the year, it is indicated that net this year is holding up well despite generally quiet conditions in many lines of industry.

STEADY PROFIT RECORD

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., has maintained a steady record of profits which for the last four years has shown an average of over $11,000,000 earned annually, or 3.14 times the dividend requirements on the full amount of 7 per cent participating Class A stock to be presently outstanding. In 1929 the total gross circulation and advertising revenue amounted to over $83,000,000, and over 143,000,000 lines of advertising were carried during the 12 months.

BUSINESS INDEX SHARPLY UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—There are enough statistical giblets in this week's business records to make a more appetizing sauce for the otherwise dry and lean Thanksgiving turkey this year. Business shows more definite signs of having hit that hard-pan resistance level which in the past it has always encountered at about 20 per cent below normal, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

At this point, apparently, the elasticity of living standards in this country reaches its limit and fundamental human wants begin to reassert themselves. At any rate, the preliminary index, after dipping below 80, has turned up sharply to 81 per cent of normal for the week ending November 22. This compares with 78.5 in the week before and 101.3 per cent in the corresponding week last year.

Though basic industrial activity is still declining, general trade has begun to expand at somewhat more than the seasonal rate. Consumer demand for homes is sustaining construction activity at a time when it is normally declining, and there are signs that small residential building is definitely on the up-grade. Money turnover is rising, commercial loans are expanding, currency in circulation is increasing with seasonal retail trade demand. As the automobile industry prepares to play its card courageously on next year's market, employment is being given some stimulus.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

Sentiment Is Finally Making Some Headway

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

APPREHENSION over the outlook is at last abating. One runs into more business men who are able to report some pickup in orders. If Wall Street would only behave itself sentiment unquestionably would brighten substantially.

AN EXCELLENT impression is now being made in most parts of the country by the way unemployment is being handled. Contributions, as a rule, are more than meeting expectations.

WORKMEN, including skilled union workmen, are helping one another out by voluntarily giving up their jobs one day a week to those not steadily employed. No previous period of unemployment witnessed such harmonious efforts to mitigate the sufferings of those out of work.

Incidentally, the five-day week movement will receive a strong impetus. The main question is coming to be, who shall foot the bill, employers or employed? The final outcome is likely to be give-and-take on both sides.

IT IS COMFORTING to meet a company president able to report an increase in business over even last year. President A. W. Leonard, of the Puget Sound Power and Light Company, on a visit to New York this week, tells me that earnings are ahead of last year, notwithstanding a substantial reduction in rates since March 1. Industrial consumption has held its own; the increase has come from a gain of 40 kilowatt hours per domestic customer, bringing the total to a point not exceeded anywhere in the United States.

His company has given employment to 2,800 men, to build a $16,000,000 development at Rock Island, on the Columbia River, 12 miles from Wenatchee. Preference is given to married men with families, citizens of the State of Washington.

Mr. Leonard states that some logging operations as well as lumber mills are starting up. He looks for early improvement in general business activity.

THE PHILADELPHIA Business Progress Association, a live body, has set an example for other cities. It is providing a "business doctor" whose services will be available, free, to local enterprises that may feel need of toning-up in order to make a better financial showing. Such a service, properly handled, has far-reaching possibilities. Not a few concerns have need for it these days.

Philadelphia is now setting the pace in more than one direction. Whereas these used to be a good deal of working at cross purposes, the foremost citizens banded themselves together for co-operative effort to build up the city. And they are building it up.

ACKNOWLEDGING a not of congratulation on his selection for a highly important position, a friend writes:

"I think to most of us the good wishes of our friends come to mean more and more as we change from the old order of things."

I have noticed a growing cordiality among financial and business men during the last year or two, especially in the East. Some of them were influenced by visits to western and other cities, where they discovered that time is taken to enjoy life. I recently wrote this:

"Remember that, after all, business is not an end in itself, but a means to the one great end: human happiness."

The truth of this is beginning to be grasped by a larger number of busy men of affairs.

Libby-Owens in Belgian Combine

BRUSSELS, Nov. 29.—After laborious negotiations a mechanical glass trust call Union des Verreries Mechaniques Belges, with initial capital of francs 200,000,000, has been forced here, on the initiative of the Societe Generale and Banque de Bruxelles, to operate the 19 glass furnaces of the Fourcault type existing in Belgium and belonging to 13 companies.

The decisive factor in the formation of the trust was Libby-Owens, whose Belgian factory at Moll is responsible for 30 per cent of the total Belgian glass output.

United States Dairy Sales to Increase

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—J. A. MacDermott, president of United States Dairy Products Corporation, estimates that gross sales of the corporation for 1930 will approximate $28,000,000, a new high record. Gross sales last year totaled $24,713,016. He said the increase results largely from acquisition of new properties since the beginning of the present year.

Week's New Bond Offerings Lower

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—New bond offerings this week amounted to $46,874,000, compared with $98,977,000 last week and $15,706,000 in the like 1929 week.

PITTSBURGHER HURT IN FIGHT

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 29.—James Gilliland, 34, of Pittsburgh, is in the Buhl Hospital in a serious condition as the result of a fight in Brookfield Township, just over the state line.

Gilliland, a salesman, came to Sharon and after registering at a local hotel went to the Ohio district. It is stated an argument was started with the proprietor of a place and a fight followed.

The owner, after knocking the Pittsburgh man down, jumped on him, disrupting his bladder. Trumbull County, Ohio, officers may make an arrest in the case after getting Gilliland's story.

HELD IN FAKE NICKEL EXPOSE

Clarence McNeil, 32, a Negro, is being held by the government pending an investigation by United States secret service operatives concerning a set of plaster of paris molds for making counterfeit liberty five-cent pieces, said to have been found in the rear of a Center avenue barber shop where McNeil was employed as a bootblack. He was arrested by city detectives and turned over to the secret service operatives. They were also said to have found some incomplete spurious five-cent pieces.

VIOLINIST WINS DIVORCE

Gaylord P. Yost, 43, of the Fairfax Apartment Hotel, well-known concert violinist and instructor, who testified that his wife, Mrs. Rose N. Yost, 39, called him a "poor fiddler" and nagged him into a nervous breakdown, was granted a divorce by Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court.

They were married in Danville, Ind., in April, 1917, and parted April 9, 1929. He testified his health was seriously affected and his musical ability impaired by her conduct, including belittling his efforts among his friends and interfering with his practice.

SCHOOL NAMES NEW STAFF MEMBER

Griffiths to Take Charge Of Technical Features in School of Accountancy

Robert M. Griffiths has been appointed to take charge of the technical features of the post-graduate course of study at Pittsburgh School of Accountancy. He will be associated in this capacity with Ernest Crowther, dean of the school and senior partner of Crowther, Mohler & Gardner, certified public accountants. Mr. Griffiths received his education in the public schools of Pittsburgh and the University of Pittsburgh.

He obtained the degree of C. P. A. after graduation from the post-graduate class of Pittsburgh School of Accountancy. He was formerly associated as an accountant with the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation and is now staff accountant with Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants and auditors.

The post-graduate class at Pittsburgh School of Accountancy will hold its opening session on Wednesday evening, December 3. It is a course of 60 sessions designed to give a thorough review in both the theory and practice of accountancy, embracing therein system installation, industrial and mercantile costs, federal and state taxes, auditing procedure, special institutions and intelligent and comprehensive reports upon the results ascertained.

PURPOSE OF COURSE

The principles and practice of law as it relates to general business are included. The material is prepared by the 35 members of the faculty, under the supervision of Mr. Griffiths.

The purpose of the post-graduate class is to prepare students for the State Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute examinations. In addition, advanced students of accounting take this course of study for review purposes. It is reported that the percentage of students from Pittsburgh School of Accountancy who pass the state examinations and who receive the degree of certified public accountant is greater than any other institution in Western Pennsylvania.

FRAUD SUSPECT ORDERED HELD

Louis Georgalas, 31, was ordered held by the United States commissioner, pending removal to the Federal District Court at Cleveland, where he was said to have been under indictment on a charge of concealing assets from a trustee in bankruptcy. He was arrested in Waynesburg by Deputy United States Marshal John Lowers. The offense was said to have occurred in Warren, O., in March, 1929. The assets consisting of olive oil, canned goods and other groceries and approximately $1,000, were said to have been the property of Gust Dontas.

Youth Asks $35,000 Damages in Injuries

Philip Cook, Jr., 19, claiming $35,000 damages for injuries in a fall into a cellarway, filed suit in Common Pleas Court through his parents against John W. Jahn, hardware dealer, 5219 Butler street. Cook fell into the cellarway in front of Jahn's store when iron doors gave way when he stepped on them September 30, 1928, the suit averred. One door fell on his head, he alleged.

Fear Water Famine In Venango County

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 29.—Though this section is deeply covered with snow—with a six-inch fall general throughout Venango County—the water supply continues serious in the rural districts. With many springs dry and farmers facing the added inconvenience of taking their stock several miles to water, under wintry conditions, apprehension grows daily.

Postal Employes To Stage Smoker

The Joint Association of Postal Employes will hold a stag smoker tonight in the German Beneficial Union hall, Arlington avenue and Brownsville road. There will be a brief business session before dinner. Various congressmen who were active in the passage of the Retirement Bill will speak. Entertainment will follow the dinner.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 29.—Six small privately owned garages and a one-story frame house were destroyed by a fire which swept through a block in Export, near here, causing a loss of $6,000. Firemen were called from Harrison City, Delmont and Murrysville.

Stable Prices Point To Recovery

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

ATTEMPTS TO STABILIZE the prices of steel products have been the outstanding business developments during the past month. The announcement of a minimum quotation of $1.65 a hundred pounds for bars, plates and shapes by the Carnegie Steel Company two weeks ago was followed by similar action by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company on its products last week.

These prices are not advances from previous levels, but they represent the first attempt on the part of the steel industry to check the downward trend of quotations during the present depression. While there have been rumors that steel prices will be advanced before the end of the year, it is very doubtful if the industry would be able to secure sufficient co-operation to actually put any increases into effect.

Commodities Stabilized

THE CHECK IN THE declining movement of other commodity prices has been the one outstandingly favorable factor in a month of discouraging results in sales and production. The copper producers are still faced with large surplus stocks, but they have boosted their price to 12 cents a pound. It is still possible to obtain the metal at 10½ cents from some sources, but the industry is hopeful that the cheaper offerings will gradually be taken from the market.

The brakes have been put on slumping wheat prices in this country, although there is still no evidence of improvement in the world market. Support in the United States was artificial and did not reflect any change in underlying conditions.

Producers of sugar also have been organizing a movement to establish the price of their product on higher levels. In nearly all industries a strong sentiment is developing against the sale of products at prices which do not yield an adequate margin of profit.

Industrial Activity Declines

WHILE FIRMER PRICES indicate that the depression has run its course, further declines have taken place in industrial activity. This has been in line with seasonal precedents. It is being felt more keenly than usual this year since the reductions in output are being made in operating schedules which already were low.

Colder weather in most parts of the country is expected to stimulate retail sales. Unseasonably warm high temperatures until a few days ago tended to check the buying of many products such as clothing.

Inquiries and new orders for railroad equipment promise to stimulate business activity in the early months of next year. Railroad buying up to the present time has been far below that of last year. The recent revival in interest in rail equipment has come too late to help industrial conditions before January 1, but should be an important factor after that time.

BETTER TRADE TONE NOTED

The undertone of business sentiment has made a definite turn actual business operations have not kept pace with the usual advance for this season of the year, the current issue of the Business Observer, monthly review of the Foreman-State Nation Bank of Chicago, finds.

Thus far, consumer buying has been surprisingly well maintained while production has been curtailed ever more than has been anticipated, the review states. The trend of the near future, however, depends on what happens to purchasing power.

Relative stability in commodity prices since the end of July, after a long precipitous decline, has been a large factor in improving the undertone of business sentiment. Relative firmness in consumer buying during the last two months, and the elimination, during the latter half of October, of weak situations which hung over for the better despite the fact that the stock market have added to the reassurance of business observers.

Lincoln Telegrapher, Woman Dies at 88

KITTANNING, Pa., Nov. 29. — Mrs. Anzonetti L. Walthour, 88, who was taught telegraphy by Stephen C. Foster, famous song writer, and was for many years a Pennsylvania telegraph operator at Greensburg, Pa., died last night from burns suffered Thanksgiving Day when her dress caught fire from an open stove.

Mrs. Walthour recently had recalled news of Lincoln's assassination coming over the wire and that she worked all night getting details for the excited populace. She leaves five children, 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, all of Kittanning.

Sues for $30,000 In Gas Blast Claim

Harry Weinberger, trading as the Star Drug Company, asked $30,000 damages for personal injuries in a suit filed against the Equitable Gas Company in Common Pleas Court. He averred that his drug store at 948 Eighth avenue, Munhall, was wrecked by an explosion December 6, 1929, the day following the explosion of the Munhall postoffice, due to gas leakage from a defective main.

West Penn Power Production Declines

The West Penn Electric Company, which controls the electric subsidiaries of the American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., reports power output to regular customers of 158,503,882 kilowatt hours for the month of October, 1930, a decrease of 9.92 per cent from the output of 175,966,096 kilowatt hours for the month of October, 1929.

For the 10 months of 1930 power output to regular customers totaled 1,567,389,097 kliowatt hours, which is 2.13 per cent less than the output for the corresponding period of 1929, which was 1,601,451,855 kliowatt hours.

WARREN OIL CURB ASKED

Directors of Middle District Oil Association have determined to request oil producers in Warren County, Pa., field to return to 70 per cent proration of production, effective immediately.

This move resulted from the resolution passed by the General Oil Conservation Board last week to return to proration of 50 per cent in Bradford-Allegany district and to 30 per cent curtailment in fields south of Bradford.

Pennsy Holders Set New Record

Another new high record in the number of Pennsylvania Railroad stockholders has been reached in the present month, with 232,491 shareholders registered on the company's books, according to an announcement made today.

This is an increase of more than 20,000 over last month's record and an advance of 44,444 in the number of Pennsylvania Railroad shareholders since November of last year.

Railroads Report Decline in Profits

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The first 58 railroads reporting October earnings had net operating income of $93,120,000 a decrease of 26.9 per cent from $127,390,000 reported by the same roads in October last year. The figures for last month, however, showed an increase of 7.6 per cent over $86,465,000 reported by the same roads in September.

HOLIDAY BUYING MORE ACTIVE LOCALLY

Little Change Noted in Business Situation; Coal Output Lower

There has been comparatively little change noted in the general business situation in this district, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Colder weather is helping the movement of seasonal merchandise and the buying of holiday goods is also showing a slight increase. Jobbers of dry goods, clothing and furnishing goods report a moderate volume of business with purchases almost entirely in small amounts and for immediate needs. Shoe sales continue light and thus far these has been very little movement of rubber footwear.

Jobbers of jewels report sales well below normal, and retail trade in that line has picked up comparatively little as yet. Construction work continues rather light, and the demand for lumber and other building materials is slow. Demand for confectionery for the holiday trade is improving, but volume of business is not up to normal.

COLLECTIONS SLOW

The volume of business in electrical equipment continues about 25 per cent below normal. While there has been a moderate improvement in demand for radio equipment, sales still continue lower than the seasonal average. Demand for sanitary equipment continues quiet, and no material improvement is looked for before spring.

Production of crude oil is at a slightly lower rate, and curtailment is in progress in the Pennsylvania fields. Production of bituminous coal is at a slightly lower rate and is between 10 per cent and 15 per cent lower than last year at this time. Demand is still slow and prices continue low.

There has been but little change in the collection situation in this district, payments to jobbers still averaging rather slow.

INDIANAN HEADS SHARON HOOP

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 29.—Henry A. Romer, president of the Continental Steel Corporation, of Kokomo, Ind., will be elected president of the Sharon Steel Hoop Company, Sharon, Pa., it has been announced.

He will succeed Servern Ker, who intends to resign after 20 years' service, to become chairman of the board. Romer was the leading figure in 1927 in the amalgamation of a number of sheet steel companies into the Continental Steel Corporation. He secured his early experience in the sheet industry in the Mahoning Valley.

Power Production Higher for Week

Building and power statistics covering third week of November show an improvement in trend over immediately preceding periods. Electricity production for the week increased 0.2 per cent over the week before, but was 6 per cent less than in like 1929 period. In the second week of November the drop from a year ago was 5 per cent. Output in the central industrial region declined 9.1 per cent and on Pacific coast 3.2 per cent, but the Atlantic coast area continued above 1929 with increase of 1.9 per cent.

PUBLIC FAVORS STOCK RULES CHANGES

Widespread Dissatisfaction Shown Over Hit or Miss Methods of Brokerages

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The public would be in a receptive mood at this time for changes in Stock Exchange rules designed to reduce widespread losses resulting from over-extended margin accounts.

Among discerning persons there is a growing recognition of the fact that brokers have perhaps been lax at looking too much at initial margins of customers and ignoring the question of secondary reserves, or ability to meet additional margin calls. The suggestion was made in this column, earlier in the week to the effect that member firms ought to be required to submit questionaires to customers, which would disclose their credit standing, their resources, and their general position. If brokers follow this proposed procedure, they would be merely exercising the same care that bankers use in making loans to customers, looking at the man as well as at the collateral.

Mr. Rukeyser

The only objection seriously expressed to the proposal was that, if brokers held customers to a reasonable limit of credit, reduced commissions might result. My answer to that is that if brokerage earnings would be reduced somewhat by putting the business on a sound basis, no general national loss would be entailed.

Responses to my earlier suggestions indicate how widespread public dissatisfaction is with hit or miss methods of extending credit in brokerage offices. Such dissatisfaction is not restricted to small fry individually, who sustained losses, but has spread to a degree to men high up in corporate ranks. For example, the president of a large and well-known holding company, listed on the stock exchange, who asked for obvious reasons that his name be withheld, told me that marginal bull operators ought to be awakened to the fact that under present rules their own partly paid for stock is being used against their interests by brokers who lend the very same certificates to "bear leaders."

Although this column believes that the stock exchange could promote the public interest by insisting that brokers adopt standards which would discourage customers from overextending themselves, it does not believe that the stock exchange should attempt to bolster up prices. The stock exchange should be neutral toward stock prices, and should promote an open market. Possibly customers should be consulted as to whether they consent to having their certificates lent to bear raiders.

Monsanto Chemical May Increase Dividend to $1.75 Basis

Following declaration of the usual quarterly cash dividend of 31¼ cents and 1½ per cent in stock, directors of Monsanto Chemical Works issued the following statement: "It was the sense of the board that the quarterly stock dividend be discontinued with this dividend and that future dividends be on a cash basis only. It is reasonable to predict that Monsanto will report for the full year net profit equal to at least $2.40 a share. In all probability directors will increase the present annual cash dividend of $1.25 to at least $1.50, with a possibility of it being $1.75, according to the trend of business during the balance of the present year.

The bulls say the recent activity of Woolworth has been due to the good showing the company has made so far this year, and to prospects of a big holiday trade that will eclipse all past December records. It is attributed in part to reports that if results for the year 1930 look good to the directors, and prospects for 1931 are encouraging, a small stock dividend may be voted in 1931 in addition to the regular cash payment.

Production of motor vehicles in the United States and Canada in October, according to the Department of Commerce, totaled 354,585, as against 224,834 in September, a decline of 31.4 per cent. This compares with 394,540 in October, 1929, a drop of 60 per cent. Output in the 10 month period ended October amounted to 3,215,932, as compared with 5,269,216 in the corresponding period of last year, a decline of 39 per cent. Automobile interests are of the opinion, however, that November output will exceed October by a substantial margin, and further improvement is anticipated for December.

One stock exchange firm which is leaning toward a somewhat bearish view on the near term course of market prices, points out that in the past, holiday interruptions have frequently marked turning points in the trend of stocks. This proved to be the case after Labor Day, 1929, Easter, 1930, and May 29 and July 5 of this year. This quarter is of the belief that should this downturn develop, support will probably be encountered just above the lows of November 10.

Customers' accounts with credit balances have shown a substantial increase over the last several months. Part of that has been due to scared selling. It accounts to some extent for the eight consecutive weekly declines in brokers' loans. Some firms have almost as many customers with credit balances as customers with debit balances. Moreover, some brokers are now lenders instead of borrowers of money.

For the first time in many months encouraging signs are seen for the locomotive builders. Inquiries from the New York Central and Chicago, Milwaukee St. Paul & Pacific alone will call for the expenditures of approximately $10,000,000, and other orders are to come out. Locomotive companies have passed through many months of lean business, and while no one anticipates that the total orders will equal those of a year ago, the signs of better demand are viewed as highly encouraging. A moderate amount of buying has come into the locomotive shares since the inquiries have become known.

WALL STREET HEARS

That virtually all important buying orders for stocks are being placed somewhat under the market.

That the short interest has increased somewhat this week, owing to the market's inability to break through its recent highs for the recovery.

That discovery that the Department of Justice's suit inquiring into the Fox-Loew hookup is still pending—a fact which had been generally forgotten in Wall street—has caused some selling of those shares.

ENDICOTT SHOE SALES SHOW INCREASE

Marked Improvement in Turnover Noted Recently; Prices Lowest in Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Endicott-Johnson Corporation, second largest shoe manufacturer in the country, has experienced a marked increase in orders during the past four weeks, following a distinctly sluggish fall business. This development is, to considerable degree, seasonal and might normally have been expected to get started six or eight weeks earlier. Nevertheless, the gain is substantial and indicates a more confident feeling than prevailed in the late summer and early fall.

Shoe stocks are generally conceded to be low as a result of greatly curtailed production this year, and prices have come down with the decline in hide and leather prices.

Endicott-Johnson reduced prices on shoes around the first of November an average of 5 per cent, and had made several reductions prior to that. Reductions which it has made since the first of the year probably average 15 to 20 per cent. Prices are the lowest in several years.

Consumers also are beginning to get the benefits of lower prices named by manufacturers. Some of the shoe chain stores recently cut prices about 10 per cent, and there have been numerous readjustments by retailers this year.

Endicott-Johnson factories are operating on an average about 75 per cent of capacity, possibly a little better at present. Incoming orders and prospects are considered sufficient to maintain this basis for a time.

RAID 2 STILLS, ROADHOUSE

A roadhouse and two distilleries were raided and a liquor-laden automobile was seized by prohibition agents yesterday.

Joseph Walker, 30, and Charlie Dreistadt, 43, were arrested in the raid on the roadhouse in Wilson road, Snowden Township, where 23 quarts of gin and 11 cases of home brew were found, according to the agents. Both men were released on bond.

A 150-gallon still and 45 barrels of mash were reported confiscated in a dwelling at 5420 Harrison street. Another still of 100-gallon capacity was seized in a house at 3421 Bigelow boulevard, agents said.

The driver of an automobile containing 90 gallons of moonshine who abandoned the car at Webster avenue and Washington street, when he observed agents following him, was being sought today. The car and liquor were seized.

STATE SENATOR HURT IN CRASH

WARREN, O., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—State Senator Cass J. Jankowski and Congressman Clarence J. McCloud, both of Detroit, were seriously injured in an automobile accident at Lake Milton, west of here.

James F. Sloan, of Detroit, former secretary to Congressman McCloud, suffered a slight injury.

Senator Jankowski suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, while Congressman McCloud suffered severe cuts on the head and many body bruises. The Senator's condition was critical, while it was said McCloud would recover.

YOUNG TALKS ON GERMAN PLEA

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Owen D. Young, author of the Young plan for war reparations, said that Germany, if faced with the necessity of accepting the prosperity index clause of the Dawes plan in order to obtain the gold adjustment clause, would desire neither.

His comment was drawn by a statement from Dr. Hans Luther, head of the Reichsbank, asking a revision of the Young plan to conform with the Dawes plan to allow Germany to pay according to ability. The Dawes plan contains both clauses.

Wife Wins Divorce From 'Gentle' Husband

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—George J. Hudak denies all the following charges, but his wife, Elsie, who was given a divorce, said he:

Compelled her to pinch-hit for the family cat and hit her with a broom when she let a mouse get away;

Threw a radio loud speaker at her, then through a window, ran down two flights of stairs and retrieved it, then hit her with it again; and:

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Irregular — Local Market Recedes

SUPPORT GIVEN TO PIVOTAL STOCKS

Market Opens Irregular But Some Shares Firm Up Later; Trading Dull

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Stocks were irregularly lower at the opening today, although losses were small except in a few rails. Atchison lost 3 and Union Pacific 2. New Haven dropped ¾. U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, American Can, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Warner Bros., American Telephone and Eastman Kodak eased ¼ to ½. Union Carbide yielded a point. There were small gains in American Smelting, Loew's, Bethlehem Steel and General Electric. Case rallied a point.

The so-called pivotal stocks firmed during the first half hour on the appearance of good support. U. S. Steel, American Can and General Electric showed fractional net gains, while Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical and American Telephone rallied a point. The better tone also checked the offerings in the rails and Southern Pacific sold a point above yesterday's close. New York Central made a small advance.

Safeway Stores was an early soft spot, dropping more than 3 points. Postal Telegraph preferred lost 4 to a new low. Auburn Auto, International Telephone, American Water Works, Houston Oil, Electric Auto-Life and Firestone preferred sagged 1 to 3.

There was little or nothing in the overnight news that had a bearing on stock prices and the trading was dull.

LESS RESERVE CREDIT OUT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The daily average volume of federal reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ending November 26, as reported by the federal reserve banks, was $1,022,000,000, a decrease of $5,000,000 compared with the preceding week and $508,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1929.

The federal reserve board's weekly review added that on November 26 total reserve bank credit amounted to $1,028,000,000, an increase of $25,000,000 for the week. This corresponds with an increase of $83,000,000 in money in circulation, offset in part by decreases of $39,000,000 in member bank reserve bank balances and $6,000,000 in unexpended capital funds, etc., and increases of $10,000,000 in monetary gold stock and $4,000,000 in treasury currency.

Holding of discounted bills increased $29,000,000 during the week, the principal changes being increases of $7,000,000 each at the federal reserve banks of New York and Richmond, and $3,000,000 each at Philadelphia and Cleveland. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market declined $2,000,000 and of treasury certificates and bills $8,000,000, while holdings of United States bonds increased $7,000,000 and of treasury notes $1,000,000.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Are You One Who Cannot Make Up Your Mind?

Can you take things or leave 'em, . . . an' be done with it?

Or do you wander all over the lot, skipping from one thing to another . . . wondering what you'll do next . . . and kicking yourself when you've done it?

That's Alice. Life's one long hop, skip and jumble to her—for she has one of those on-again-off-again-gone-again hearts. And now she's sobbing on our doorstep, because her House O' Dreams is busted. Will she get sympathy and a lot of sweet, consoling kisses? Wait and see—

"Dear Sally Martin—

"I wonder if you can help me. I just can't decide what I want to do, and I'm all broken up about it. It is a dreadful feeling, I can tell you.

"I am an only child, and my father died when I was six, so my mother has had to work terribly hard all her life. She is a dressmaker. All my life I have been carefree, and have had no responsibilities. In high school, and for two years after that, I had a marvelous time. I was rather popular, and always had plenty of dates and loads of friends, both male and female. There was something doing every night.

Accepts Proposal

"When I was 18, I went on a vacation, and met a new chap. At first I didn't give him any time at all, for there were three perfectly darling boys around me. But the second time I saw him, I developed a frightful crush on him. He drove me home, and afterwards wrote me every day, and sent telegrams and special delivery letters and phoned me from the town where he lived.

"I met him in July, and the following September he proposed and I accepted him. I shall never forget how gloriously happy we were that night. For a time everything was lovely. Then I began going out with other boys because I only saw him for two days every two weeks, (he was a traveling salesman) and I got terribly lonely. He didn't like it much, but I told him I couldn't see why I should miss all the fun while he was away, and he finally said it was okay because he knew I loved him. But still he could hardly see how I could do it. Several of these men attracted me strongly, but in spite of that we were married—a year ago last June.

Love Doubtful

"And at my wedding I was just thrilled to pieces—because an old sweetheart of mine . . . my first . . . was there, and I've never got over my crush on him.

"But Tim and I were gloriously happy the first year. Then he lost his job. Finally, after we'd moved in with mother, and he'd tried several things that weren't much good, I told him he'd better see if he could find something out of town. He went, but he came back in a week. And I greeted him with 'What are you doing here?' Right there we both realized that I didn't love him any more. Did I really love him? I wonder! I think I did. Well, we decided we'd better separate. So he left.

"But when he did, I almost had hysterics, right in the office where I was working, and I couldn't stop crying, even in the street. I don't know whether I cried for him, or because my 'house of dreams' had tumbled down. The next Monday he called at the office, and I asked him to dinner. (In the meantime I'd been going with the nicest boy!) and he came. He asked me for another chance, but he didn't move me at all, so he left. But after he was gone, I simply cried myself to pieces. So I finally packed my bag, and went to look for him, ringing doorbells all over creation, crying in front of strangers, and what not. Finally I found him and moved in with him—in a terrible neighborhood, because he had almost no money. But I didn't mind that. It was a novel experience. Everything was 'moonlight and roses' for a couple of days. And then, with nothing to do but sit and look at each other, we began to get on each other's nerves. So I left.

"And now I don't know what to do. We're not happy together, and we miss each other when we're apart. It is terrible. Simply terrible. I wish I could get over the dreadful feeling it gives me. I am so frightfully tired. I can't get enthused over anything. Mother even bought me a new dress, and it didn't mean a thing.

"Will you please tell me what you think of this situation. What shall I do? I want to go back to Tim, and yet I don't. I don't know my own mind. And what is worse than that?

"ALICE N."

Why can't you make up your own mind?

Must Build Minds

Because you've never made a mind to make up. Minds don't "just happen." We build them. We build them by every little act, by each small decision or choice that we make— and if we refuse to make decisions if we insist on living on emotion and allowing ourselves to be swayed by each passing impulse—then we never grow a mind.

You've never grown a mind. You have actually no more intelligence or character than a jelly fish. You're selfish and cowardly, and in short, a complete mess. And you'll never get out of the jelly fish class and rate as a human being until you cut out your fluttering and fumbling, pick a program and stick to it.

Shall you go back to Tim? Well, it's pretty tough on Tim, but, nevertheless, I'd advise it. Go back, and when you get there, stay!

Only a slacker deserts a man because he's up against it. Stick by your man. Share his bad luck. And cut out your silly, smeary thoughts about Other Men. There's nothing romantic and nothing unusual about such thoughts.

So, snap out of it. Stop being a Mishmash Mess. Stop drifting. Get an idea. Sink your teeth into it, and hang on, though a thousand temptations tug at your silly heels!

Then, maybe, some day, somewhere, you'll manage to grow up and get human!

MODERN PARIS -:- He Can't Make Up His Mind -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Arrayed the world around are lovely, colorful woman faces for to admire. You are fascinated by one kind and your friend by another. Good that there are enough to go 'round—to satisfy the heart yen of Adam's brothers! You like velvet-dark Sorcha, dreaming and rather serious. You like serious girls, you say. Your friend who himself takes his life seriously. HE weathervanes around invariably to the madcap breeze of the pert Dots of the world. One snug short man, fair and egg-shaped, beams with all his heart on the elegantly tall damsel with devastating black eyes and snowy teeth. Sparkle and speed, the slow but "good as bread" little man adores. Funny Bill, with a sense of humor that works twenty-four hours a day, worships wistful blondes. Blondes with eyes—brows that bend up and violet eyes that beseech. Plain John, bashful and neutral, will come to the party if he knows there is going to be a "siren" there. Midnight eyes and hair, mysterious and unknown as a jungle river in the dark—ah! The sweetest little face in the office smiles in vain for plain John. But John's friend, distingue and coddled by all women from twenty to seventy, yawns at Mystery, Wistful Blonde, Sparkle, Pertness, Greek Profile, and all. But he goes all agog and a-twitter over cosmeticless, innocent, unadorned, refined Youth and Simplicity.

YOU like a turn-up nose. Another man admires the antique straight one. You like slant eyes a la Swanson. The friend from Main street secretly is keen upon the piquant nose, de l'esprit, de la coquetterie, the friendly gaiety, the lively eyes of the French cast of face.

Most of you know what you like. Most of you have a favorite color. For see the married men and the two-by-twos on the streets.

But the chap on the fence doesn't know what he likes. He's dazzled. That is a bachelor—a man for whom there are too many pretty women in the world.

Eliminate the Eye Hazards In Industry

A great deal has been said about industrial hazards of all kinds. There are many such, but it is undoubtedly true that "the eye hazards of industry have come to be one of the most serious causes of blindness in America." What is going to be done about it?

The language I have just quoted is taken from the recent and very interesting report of a study conducted by the National Safety Council and the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

This survey covers the records kept by various industrial corporations during the years 1926 and 1927, in which period 2,757 men and women were reported saved from serious injury or total blindness in both eyes during those two years. What I mean is that improved conditions have done away with accidents which would have occurred under old-time conditions. Also, 4,654 cases were recorded of workmen saved from injury or total blindness in one eye. This makes a total of 10,168 eyes saved from serious injury or total destruction.

Represented in the list of 583 industrial plants, employing an aggregate of 578,396 men, to which questionnaires were sent, were metal, chemical automotive, steam railroad, cement, mining and other companies. These are the industries in which most of the eye injuries are met.

The use of protective glasses or goggles with lenses and face masks, so strongly built as to resist flying metal or deadly chemicals, has come to be the accepted thing in most industrial plants. In consequence, the numbers of cases of blindness and eye injury have become fewer each year.

This is encouraging, but it is not enough. The great need is for safety measures to be taken by every industrial plant for elimination of eye hazzards. What is needed is guarded machinery and tools at the seat of operations. Every industrial company should be held to account for revising their processes of manufacturing so that human beings shall be safeguarded from the untold misery and great cost of blindness to the individual to the State, and to the Nation.

There has been a great increase in the use of destructive chemicals in industry in recent years. With the spattering of molten metal or injurious chemicals, some of the glass lenses are so badly damaged that they have to be replaced. Think what the conditions would be if protective lenses were not used. These goggles and headmasks have saved thousands of workers from blindness or terrible eye injury.

It is impossible to calculate in terms of dollars the cost of blindness, to the individual, to the employer, to the state and nation. Many still do not realize, or will not believe, that it is possible to prevent eye injury or blindness in industry. They take for granted that just about so many persons will receive eye injuries, and many companies are spending thousands of dollars for damages without considering the importance of prevention.

Every workman should be protected in all ways in these hazardous industries. Sight is too precious to be squandered so carelessly. Such surveys as this will open the minds of the public to the dangers in many of our industrial fields, and a solution will be found to remove them.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Becomes Angry and Jealous

I have had few more difficult social tasks in my life than the one which confronted me when we were all settled again in our places at the dinner table which the unexpected entrance of Dicky and Edith Fairfax had caused Philip Veritzen to rearrange. To enact the smiling role of guest of honor at my employer's right hand, to play up to Edith Fairfax, who was cleverly assuming that the situation was the most natural one possible, and to ignore Dicky's pointed avoidance of me, required an effort of will power which I fear I never could have managed had it not been for those never-failing friends, Harry and Lillian Underwood.

From the moment when we reseated ourselves at the table, with extra places laid for Edith and for Dick, the Underwoods kept the conversational ball in motion and effectively screened the fact that, beyond the most perfunctory remarks, my husband was ignoring me as completely as if I had been as absent from the festivity in body as I felt myself fast becoming in spirit. For I knew from experience the bad quarter of an hour—if not four times that time-honored interval — which would be mine when my husband and I should first find ourselves alone after this dinner. His pride, no doubt, would keep him from any jealous outburst of words concerning my employer, but I knew that he had missed no detail of the dinner at which I was so patently the guest of honor. The private room, the especially prepared food, the exquisite and costly orchid centerpiece — nothing had escaped his eye, I was sure of that, and was equally certain that in one way or another I should pay in mental discomfort for each item.

That he would loftily ignore or plausibly account for the less forgivable action of bringing Edith Fairfax to dinner at this restaurant when he had refused to come to the city to help me "sling the party" for his niece I knew also, and the knowledge piled fuel on the flame raging within me. With an iron hand I put down the impulse to spring up from the table and voice my anger against my husband and the woman who ever and again sent little smiles at me from her place diagonally across from mine. The knowledge that she would welcome such an outburst that her apparent exuberant friendliness was meant to goad me to some undignified betrayal of jealousy, was curiously enough the thing I needed to bring back my poise. It was ice water poured upon the fire and spurred me in just the opposite direction to that which she intended. I sent her back smile for smile, with the grim little reflection that we probably could pose for an illustration of that worn-out simile, "A pair of Cheshire cats."

I was able also to turn a smiling, apparently unconcerned face to Mr. Veritzen's anxious murmur, "But you are eating nothing, Mrs. Graham. Don't you like these? I will order something else."

"But I'm going to eat them," I protested, conscious, though Dickey's face was turned away from us, that he was hearing every word, or guessing at them. "I'm simply undecided which to attack first. Both look so tempting."

I was only speaking the truth. Upon each dinner plate lay a portion of delicately browned breast of chicken and an equally appetizing serving of lamb, bacon and sliced onions which had been brought to us, native fashion, upon the skewers which had held the meat and its garnishings before the fire, and which the waiter deftly removed as he served us. Turkish pilaf, rice, light yellow in color, almost creamy in texture, was an accompaniment, and enormous peas, larger than I had ever seen, were a side dish.

"Try the chicken first," Mr. Veritzen advised, and I knew by his tone that he was appeased. "And I do want you to taste the pilaf and tell me how you like it."

I did as he bade me and did not need to dissemble my gratification.

"It is delicious," I exclaimed. "What makes it at once so delicate in flavor and yet—so—hearty—I think is the old-fashioned word I should use."

I was talking against time, for, though the food was indeed delicious, I knew that I needed all my resolution to choke any of it down while I was so torn with anger and jealousy. But Mr. Veritzen was plainly delighted at my commendation.

"It is cooked in the same sweet butter with which the chicken is basted as it is turned before the fire, in the same fashion as your skewered lamb. No modern cookery here, at least where the meats are concerned. Try the chick peas. They have the same flavor, and I am sure you will like them."

I didn't, particularly, when I had obeyed him, but the chicken and the skewered lamb were as delicious as the pilaf. A furtive glance at Edith showed me that she was eating her portions with enjoyment, and with a sudden reaction I found myself determined that I would not let her spoil my meal, as I guessed she flattered herself she was doing. And then I heard Dicky answering a question of Lillian's:

"Yes, it was a sudden decision, and I made time getting here. I called up the hotel to see if I could make up a dinner party, but they told me you had all gone out to dinner. So Ede took pity on me."

I attacked my food with sudden zest. So he had come to the city in answer to my summons. Edith was an afterthought. Or was she? Had he intended inviting her to make one of the dinner party?

Amateur Vamps.

Comfortable shoes, a comfortable conscience and a comfortable love-affair; this combination will do more to keep a woman's face unwrinkled than a thousand-dollar face-lift and a course of beauty-packs.

The women a man remembers most tenderly are those who made his bachelor days happy—by letting him slip through their fingers.

This is the day of the amateur-vamping championship, when every 16-year-old fancies that she could make Cleopatra look as innocuous as a strawberry sundae, if she could only find a Marc Anthony.

The acid-test of a modern girl's love is not her willingness to go through purgatory for a man, before marriage, but her willingness to go through poverty with him, after marriage.

* * *

No man has ever written a convincing book on "How to Win a Woman," because the kind of man who could write authentically on that subject is always too busy trying to LOSE a lot of women, to stop and theorize about it.

In a modern girl's philosophy, apparently, marriage has nothing more to do with love than night has to do with sleep, or Nature with a good complexion.

A girl seldom notices what the clergyman who marries her looks like; but she always seems to feel that a good-looking lawyer will make her divorce a lot more binding.

"The only real beauty is of the mind"—which is very lucky for the girls who are wearing the new long skirts, push-back hats and half-grown hair, these days.

Still, no modern man appears to be straining his eyes, looking for "beauties of the mind," in a woman.

Must Have Care

If you are in the habit of using a dish mop, don't forget to wash it in fresh hot boiling water and suds after the dishes are finished, as it absorbs the grease and will quickly become sour. Wash it in hot soda solution if very greasy and rinse in boiling water. Then hang out in the air to dry.

Correct Manners

Announcing the Secret Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As my girl friend and I are very much interested in your articles and are constant readers, we write to you concerning a question which we have been debating.

We have a friend who is planning to be married next month. It is to be a secret wedding, and a very quiet one. The question is this: Should the bride send out wedding announcements, and if so, how soon after the wedding should she send them?

Thank you very much, Mrs. Beeckman. We surely have profited much by your articles and wish you all amount of success.

The Perplexed Two.

It would be in excellent form for the bride to plan to send out announcements. She should plan to have them ready so that they may be sent as soon as possible after the marriage has taken place.

And thank you very much for your kind words of appreciation!

Wait for an Introduction

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to be friends with a girl I have seen many times. I haven't any way of meeting her. Would you be so kind as to advise me of a way of becoming acquainted with her? MAN.

I know just how you feel about meeting this young lady, and I wish I could wave a good mannered wand and help you to meet this princess. But Mrs. Grundy would be very scornful of both of us, if we did anything so unconventional as allow you to meet the young lady without the usual form of introduction. Have you thoroughly investigated the possibilities of finding a mutual friend who could make the introduction? If this isn't possible, then I am afraid that you will have to wait for fate to bring you together or wait for an introduction.

Entertaining the Employer and His Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married just recently, and the man my husband works for told him that he and his wife would come over to our apartment to spend some evening with us. I have never met his employer's wife, but have met his employer. Should I serve them a lunch? If so, what should it consist of? About what time should be served?

How should I entertain them as they are much older than we are? A BRIDE.

It would be charming of you, and would show that you were an accustomed hostess, if you would set a definite time to invite these friends to come "to break bread with" you, and then carefully plan every detail of your hospitality. For instance, why not choose a Sunday evening supper soon, if you do not wish to ask them to a more formal dinner?

When you have decided on the day and date, write a note to the wife inviting her and her husband, stating the day, date, and time. Tell her also the occasion: "It would give my husband and me such pleasure if you and Mr. Brown would come to our home to have a very informal supper with us on Sunday, the first of December, at seven o'clock."

For such a meal there are delightful and delicious menus, and for the social return, the planning trouble are negligible.

The fact that you have not met the wife of your husband's employer does not mean that your invitation should not be addressed to her. It should be so addressed. And there need be no more plan for entertainment than the customary talking of "this and that," which is the charm of any other such informal occasion.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A network of small muscles encircle the eyes and the mouth. They are delicate in structure. When they soften, and the surrounding tissues go slack, the skin gets crepelike and falls into fine lines. It is particularly necessary when applying cosmetics close to the eyes to be gentle.

Short stockings can produce all kinds of foot torture, corns and ingrowing nails. They are almost as much of a menace as shoes that are too small. Stockings should be changed daily. There should be a frequent change of shoes, especially in warm weather. Little dogs that carry us around all day long are entitled to attention. If they don't get it, they let us know. And hurty feet don't make for pretty faces.

To build a prize winning complexion, make it a practice to eat some raw vegetables every day—tomatoes, onions, carrots, or cabbage. Fresh fruits have cosmetic values, particularly figs, pears and the citrus family. There is a reason; they act as cleaners for the tummy and the intestinal tract, scour them out, put them in order.

The lungs should be used to their full capacity. Air should be pulled down into the lowest cells, to wash their walls clean and to aerate the blood. Shallow breathing is one cause of skin pallor. It does not lift the chest as it should be, so is responsible for shelvy prominent collar bones. Deep breathing puts red tulips in the cheeks, and carnations, too. It is the cheapest of all cosmetics

Horoscopes

Sunday, November 30

Sunday's horoscope is not a very important one for general activities, although some cherished ambition may be attained through writings or a contract. There is some menace of quarrels or friction, leading to sorrow or disappointment in intimate affairs.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which much depends upon individual ambition and effort. With these there may be a new contract or some cherished project may receive friendly assistance. Be on guard against friction and quarrels, which may bring personal disappointment or sorrow.

A child born on this day should be mentally keen and well equipped for success and position in life, but it should receive early training of a disposition inclined to contention, strife, impetuosity and self-will.

Monday, December 1

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very conflicting state of affairs, although in the long run progress and prosperity should rule. It is a very eventful day with much initiative, important opportunities and much stirring about. Employment offers promotion or preferment, there is sign of sudden change or travel and stimulus for bold ventures.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of very important and unforeseen developments in the affairs. Sudden change or travel are possible, the employment holds honors or promotion and new and bold projects are under high impetus and initiative. All depends on determination and precaution.

A child born on this day should be bounteously equipped for signal success in life. An eventful and probably public career is shown.

Coral Beads

Coral beads have a dull, ugly look if they are in need of cleaning. They may be cleaned by dissolving a teaspoonful of borax in a pint of warm water and dipping the coral into this solution. When clean rinse in lukewarm water and dry on a towel.

Household Hints

Why not use the gravy boat to fill the preserve and jelly jars? It can be held by the handle, dipped into the preserving kettle and the long nose will fit nicely into any size fruit jar.

If the paper pattern you are going to use is badly wrinkled by improper folding, press it out smooth with a warm iron before using. Many a garment has been ruined by using that sort of a pattern.

A roll of the mucilaged brown paper tape that comes for sealing bundles is excellent to have around the house for labeling jars and packages. A roll of this tape will last a long time and come in handy many times.

To remove the fat from hot soup, pour it through a cloth wrung out of very cold water. All the fat will remain in the cloth except for just the amount one would want to enrich the soup. Heat the soup again before serving.

CARDS STILL FIRING FLAG WINNERS

ANY TIME THE St. Louis National League club wins a pennant somebody partly responsible for it has to go. That's a way the Cardinal owners have of rewarding those who figure prominently in championship achievements. In 1926 it was Rogers Hornsby. In 1928 it was Bill McKechnie. This year, President Sam Breadon and his associates found themselves stymied as far as taking action against a successful manager was concerned, as they had signed Gabby Street for 1931 when it looked as if the Redbirds would not have a chance for the flag. So they had to look elsewhere for a victim and they selected Andy High, alternate third baseman and pinch-hitter extraordinary.

Andy High

If one player on the Cardinal roster had more than another to do with landing the National League pennant for St. Louis last season it was this same High. When the Redbirds invaded Brooklyn for three games on September 16, 17 and 18 the flag was at stake on the series. It was a pinch double by High in the tenth inning that beat Dazzy Vance in the first game and it was another pinch double by the same smashing little hitter that beat Dolph Luque in the second encounter. Those two emergency blows put the Cards over for the pennant, without counting what High did at other stages of the campaign. Yet Andy has been released to the St. Louis farm in Rochester.

FANDOM WILL BE inclined to wonder not so much at the action of the Cardinal bosses in dropping High, for they are only running true to form in disposing of pennant factors, as at the fact that 15 other clubs waived on Andy and let him get out of the majors. The little fellow with the powerful bat was one of the surest pinch-hitters in the big show and not the poorest third baseman in the world by any means. Several clubs on the main line could have used him to advantage, yet all permitted him to be shipped to the minors.

The explanation is the joke rule that makes it possible for a club to withdraw a waiver request and keep a player if some other club refuses to pass him up. Realizing that in a chain-store transfer, like the High case, it would be merely a waste of time to claim the player, as the waiver request would immediately be withdrawn, the average club can see no sense in blocking the way. Besides, it may want a similar favor itself some time. Just another of those "gentlemen's agreements." At that, the Cards may lose High eventually, as if the Class AA leagues accept the draft ultimatum, on which the time limit expires next Monday, Andy will be subject to the draw.

A LONG FOOTBALL association between Cooper French and Frank Diedrich, stars of the Penn State backfield, at quarter and left half, respectively, was terminated when the two played the final game of their college gridiron careers here on Thanksgiving Day.

French and Diedrich played together for many years. They were teammates at Staunton Military Academy, then on the Penn State Freshmen eleven in 1927, and for the last three seasons as varsity backs for the Lions. French is a brother of Walter French, old West Point star and for several years an outfielder for Connie Mack's Athletics.

TODAY'S BIG FOOTBALL game in Chicago is the seventeenth between Notre Dame and the Army and the first of the series played anywhere except in West Point or New York. The Irish won 11 times to the Army's four prior to today, and scored 185 points to 149 for the Cadets. One game, that of 1922, ended in a scoreless tie. The teams did not meet in 1918, owing to the war. The record of the fixture follows:

1913—Notre Dame 35, Army 13	1922—Notre Dame 0, Army 0
1914—Notre Dame 7, Army 20	1923—Notre Dame 13, Army 7
1915—Notre Dame 7, Army 0	1924—Notre Dame 13, Army 7
1916—Notre Dame 10, Army 30	1925—Notre Dame 0, Army 7
1917—Notre Dame 7, Army 2	1926—Notre Dame 7, Army 0
1919—Notre Dame 12, Army 9	1927—Notre Dame 0, Army 18
1921—Notre Dame 21, Army 0	1929—Notre Dame 7, Army 0

The annual reserve list filed at the office of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis shows that the 16 major league clubs have reserved a total of 568 players for next season, 281 in the National and 287 in the American. This makes it possible for 72 names to be added if all clubs go up to the limit of 40 athletes.

That there will be a number of additions is indicated by the action of all but one club in leaving room for more players to be taken on. Washington is the only club up to the 40 limit in man power. The Giants, Braves and Cubs have reserved 39 each, but all of the other lists show smaller totals. The Phillies and Browns are lowest with 30 and 29, respectively. The Pirate roster still shows a total of 32 players, not counting Heinie Meine, voluntarily retired, or Joe Dawson, listed as ineligible. The crew is made up of 14 pitchers, two catchers, 10 infielders and six outfielders.

Foots Clement

THE SELECTION OF Capt. Foots Clement and his mates on the University of Alabama's Crimson Tide to meet Washington State in the fourteenth Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena on New Year's Day gives Alabama the distinction of having been picked for the classic oftener than any other school in the East, Mid-West or South.

This is the third time Alabama has been chosen. Previously Pitt and the Southerners shared honors, with two selections to the credit of each. W. & J., Penn State, Penn, Ohio State, Brown, Harvard, Notre Dame, Navy and Georgia Tech were picked once each.

THE NAMING OF Washington State for the big game marks the second time that college has been so honored. Of the other coast teams, California and Stanford were given the award three times each, and Southern California, Washington and Oregon twice each. When Washington State was first chosen for the Rose Bowl game in 1916, the inaugural year, one of the guards on the opposing team, Brown, was Wallace Wade, now coach of Alabama. Alabama has yet to be defeated in the Pasadena classic. In 1926 it defeated Washington, 20 to 19, and in 1927 it played a 7-to-7 tie with Stanford. The Crimson Tide has not been defeated nor tied this year, having beaten Howard, Mississippi, Sewanee, Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Kentucky, Florida, Louisiana State and Georgia in a row, with only Tennessee and Vanderbilt scoring while Alabama rolled up 250 points.

The doom of the absurd sacrifice fly rule in baseball apparently is sealed by the announcement from National League headquarters that President John A. Heydler will support the movement to abolish it. As President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, is known to be opposed to the rule, Heydler's stand just about settles it.

In all probability the elimination of the rule from the scoring code will be recommended to the rules committee, which will meet in New York shortly after the annual major league sessions there next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. This committee will be composed of Commissioner Landis, three representatives from each major league and one representative of the minors. It is the custom to

GAMES TONIGHT.

Cleveland at Buffalo.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Detroit Olympics, the most popular club in the International Hockey League, are to be the guests of Roy D. Schooley's Yellow Jackets at Duquesne Garden tonight. For the last several seasons the Olympics annually have played to more fans than any other team in the circuit, and this despite the fact that they have enjoyed no exceptional success. Their popularity is largely due to the fact that they favor an "open" game and display a willingness to give a goal to get a tally or two. Tonight's game marks their first appearance here, but they probably will be a fine drawing card on the occasion of their next visit.

Roy D. Schooley, local hockey artist who has made alteration after alteration in an effort to produce an ice picture pleasing to the eyes of local fans, is contemplating two more changes in the ranks of his Yellow Jackets. Paddy Sullivan, star center here a few seasons ago, has been working out with the locals for the past week and is primed for the "actual competition" test, and Eddie Bouchard, with the New York Americans last season, may break into the Pittsburgh lineup tonight.

VET JOINS LOCALS

Bouchard is a big Frenchman who can perform equally well at forward or defense. He did not arrive here until after the Jackets' drill yesterday, but he appears to be in fine condition and his years of successful campaigning in the National League has not left his ability open to question.

Bouchard played here with the Pirates for a short time before being purchased by the New York club.

Albie Cox, new goalie, who made a sensational debut last week, is certain to be back in the nets, and Cliff McBride, out for more than a week with a hip injury, is primed to return to his defense post. Tubby Moore, big defense man, who also made his debut last week, has profited through several workouts, and he probably will see considerable action tonight.

The local starting front line combination of Whitey Fields, Tory Gregg and Cam Proudlock has produced five of the seven goals scored by the Jackets, and it is not likely that it will be changed. Fields showed great improvement against Windsor, and if he is able to continue his fine work, Paddy Sullivan will have to limit his activity to spare duty.

NEWMAN FOE'S BEST

Johnny Newman, stalwart center, is the "big gun" of the Detroit attack. He is an Ottawa product, who has been hailed as a "second George Boucher." His scoring point total is twice that of any of his Olympic mates. Farrand Gillie, veteran left wing, is the Michiganders' second best scoring bet. In addition to being a strong attacker, Gillie is regarded as one of the best defensive wingmen in the game.

Jess Spring, with the Pirates last season, and Rusty Hughes with the Detroit National Leaguers last year will be at the Detroit defense points in front of Emmett Venne, young goalie, said to be about "ripe" for the majors. Center Jimmy Herberts is another Olympic well known to local fans. He used to come here with the Boston, Toronto and Detroit National Leaguers. Like Spring, Bernard Brophy, Detroit left wing, is a former Pittsburgh iceman.

The Olympics' well-balanced lineup has enabled them to climb into the first division, and the Jackets will have to show plenty of fight if they are to crash

KEARNS LOSES SUIT

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker and former manager of Jack Dempsey, lost another court battle yesterday. Circuit Judge Otto Kerner upheld a temporary alimony order of $500 monthly and $1,000 solicitor's fees, awarded Mrs. Lena Kearns last September by Judge William V. Brothers.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HUNGER ROCK OF GERMANY—The famous "Hungerstein," in the River Elbe, near Tetschen, Germany, has lived up to its evil omen since 1417, when a low level of the river was first recorded. The legend attached to it is that when the waters of the Elbe fall away to a record low level, hardships are sure to follow. In 1918, the waters of the river sank again to the lowest mark in the history of the "Hungerstein," and the fortunes of the German people reached their lowest ebb in that year, thus justifying once more the sinister prediction of the rock. CINCINNATUS—Cincinnatus, who lived in the Fifth Century, B. C., is considered a model of antique virtue and simplicity. When the Roman Senators sought him out in despair to offer him the dictatorship of Rome, they found him at the plow. Within a fortnight he defeated the invading Aequians, relieved the Roman army, saved Rome and returned to his plow at his small farm on the Tiber (462 B. C.) (Reference: "Early Progress" by West.)

CRONIN BOOSTS BUC ROOKIE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Another promising shortstop of the famed California brand seems to have been landed by the Pirates in the person of Harry Geisberger, sensation of the Sacred Heart High School, the same institution that gave Joe Cronin, Harry Heilmann and other star performers to the majors. The rookie was acquired some time ago.

Scout Joe Devine, sponsor for many of the Pittsburgh luminaries, is responsible for the acquisition of Geisberger, but Cronin is the first one to come to the front with a boost for the impressive player.

Joe was the prize shortstop for the Sacred Heart team when he first attracted attention. Devine was successful in getting Sunny Joe's signature to a Pirate contract. Since that time Cronin has developed into one of the greatest shortfielders the game has produced in the past 15 years. He recently was awarded the honor of being designated the most valuable player in the American League, an honor which he had to win over stars like Al Simmons and other brilliant players.

"I really believe the Pirates, through Joe Devine, have picked up a great prospect in Harry Geisberger," said Cronin. "Two years ago he played shortstop for the Sacred Heart High School team, while I was the coach. Since then he has improved continualy and although only 18 or 19, he should be ready in two years time; he loves the game and with his natural ability he may be ready sooner."

Chillysauce

Augustin (Lefty) Dugas, youthful Pirate outfielder secured from Wichita, was a big headliner in the Western League, according to the official records of the circuit.

Dugas' first year in professional sport saw him within a few points of leading the circuit with his batting mark of .349.

Although only three members of their team are employed, the St. Rosalia Preps, of Greenfield, went to Steubenville, O., to play the Steubenville Ex-High team in a benefit game last night for Steubenville's army of the unemployed . . . That's the proper spirit for you . . . The drivers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Press did not play their scoreless tie in vain on the Bluff Thanksgiving morning. They got plenty of bumps and bruises out of it . . . Pa Pitt's three college football squads, among 'em, piled up the astounding total of eight defeats and one tie during the past season. Tech and the Dukes both lost three games, while Pitt lost two and tied one . . . And Tech still has that postponed benefit game with Wash-Jeff at the Stadium next Saturday to get out of its system . . . And Wash-Jeff, under the able coaching of Bill Amos and the ditto captaining and tackle playing of one Walter Levine, is plenty tough.

The tip is out that Capt. Biff Jones, who was forced by Army regulations to quit his head coaching job at West Point at the end of 1929 season, will be back at the Military Academy next year in an important executive position connected with athletics. . . .Too bad Penn State didn't get any farther with its two fine Thanksgiving Day stands against Pitt at the Stadium, last year and this. . . . Last year, it was leading, 7-6, at the half, only to bow, 20-7, and this year it was trailing by only 6-0, and lost, 19-12. . . . The Pitt game is a jinx to the Blue and White, which hasn't triumphed over the Panthers since 1919 . . . Would you say that Warren Heller, of Pitt, was what his surname implies against State on Thursday?

Bud Taylor announced before he entered the ring with Fidel LaBarba in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night that this would be the kid's last fight unless he won. . . . Taylor in his long career has dragged down more than a half-million dollars in purses and has almost half of it left. . . . Didn't Villanova pull a prize package out of the bag when it booked Washington State College for a game at Philadelphia today, little realizing at the time that the Cougars would win the Pacific Coast Conference title? . . . Two of Kiski's stars, Bettridge, the halfback, and Wilbur Plummer, star field goal kicker, whose toe defeated the Pitt Freshmen, both are out with injuries and will not be able to play in the team's closing game of the season, against the North Carolina University freshmen down in North Carolina next Friday.

TECH GRIDDERS GIVEN REST

Carnegie Tech football players are enjoying a welcome two days' respite from practice on a snow-covered gridiron as a result of the postponement of the Carnegie Tech - W. & J. game from this afternoon to next Saturday, December 6. This action was taken early Friday morning by Graduate Managers Overend and Theurer, of Carnegie and W. & J. respectively, after they noted the small crowds and the discomforts suffered by the spectators at the Thanksgiving Day gridiron engagements in this district.

Every person connected with the game agreed to the shift of dates. Coaches Steffen and Waddell, of the Tartans; Amos and Henry, of the Presidents; the players themselves, and all those who have purchased tickets are well pleased that no attempt will be made to stage the game under the present weather conditions.

The weather bureau was consulted by Overend before he started his plans for a postponement. He was told that there was no immediate prospect of a break in the present cold wave, but that within another week better football weather, from a spectators' standpoint, would be on tap.

The Tartans were scheduled to go through their final workout of the season yesterday, but when the game was postponed the players were immediately notified that they could take both yesterday and today off. Coach Waddell will assemble his squad again on Monday for another week of drilling before sending his team against the Red and Black.

Tickets that were purchased for today's game will be good next Saturday without the necessity of exchanging them for other pasteboards.

No change in any of the established plans for the game has been forced because of the shifting of the date. Radio Stations KDKA and KQV yesterday stated that they would go through with their

The year before, Notre Dame won by 12 to 6, and the year before that by 18 to 0. Army defeated the Irish. In 1925 Army won, 7 to 0, and the Cadets were on top in 1914 and 1915. All other contests have gone the way of all the flesh the Irish have tackled this year, into the coffers at South Bend.

Neither eleven has met up with Ol' Man Defeat so far this fall. The Irish have numbered Southern Methodists, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Pitt, Indiana, Drake and Northwestern among its victims. Army has been tied by Yale, but numbers Harvard and Illinois among its major victims.

Both coaches, Sasse, of Army, and Rockne, of Notre Dame, were inclined to be reticent when it came to speaking out in meeting about their lineups last night. I tackled both of 'em at the Notre Dame Club dinner at the Lake Shore Athletic Club. I waited 'till after they were through eating, so as to be sure they'd be in a good humor. They were so, but were still mysterious when it came to giving out definite information.

STANFORD FAVORED TO BEAT DARTMOUTH

CRIMSON TIDE IS INVITED TO ROSES GAME

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Nov. 29. — (AP.) — Dartmouth's Green Indians, 3,000 miles from their home base in quest of new football honors, will face Stanford's Red Indians here today in the first big intersectional contest to be played on the Pacific Coast this season.

One of the leading teams in the East, Dartmouth comes West with a record of no defeats and one scoreless tie—with Yale. Stanford's record, not so impressive, includes a scoreless tie with Minnesota and an overwhelming defeat by Southern California.

STANFORD FAMED

Records, not withstanding, the slow starting Stanford eleven is strongly favored in this section to take the measure of the squad from Hanover. Tardy in development, Stanford snapped out of its lethargic state to score smashing victories over Washington and California.

Dartmouth has plenty of followers and none other than Coach Glenn (Pop) Warner, of Stanford, said recently the Eastern team would win, largely through the advantage of a heavier line. However, there are some who believe Coach Warner was working a psychology stunt on his boys.

Coach Jack Cannell, of Dartmouth, has made no predictions, but from the barred gates of the Stadium wi the Green Indians worked out, hav come reports of rigorous practice against defense of Stanford's fake reverses and three-men lateral passes.

FINE CARD BACKFIELD

Conceded stronger on the line, Dartmouth, however, probably cannot match the backfield combination that carries the colors of Stanford. Coach War, er has three sets of ball-lugers, all interchangeable and most of them heavy.

Part of the proceeds will be turned over to help relieve the unemployment situation in this section. With an advance sale of more than 25,000 tickets, those in charge look for an attendance reaching more than 50,000 persons. The probable lineup:

Dartmouth.		Stanford
Sullivan	L.E.	Colvin
Barber	L.T.	Grey
Bromberg	L.G.	Hazen
Andres	C.	Taylor
Hofman	R.G.	Bardin
Gehan	R.T.	Ehrhorn

ALABAMA INVITED

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Alabama's Crimson Tide established itself as one of the most popular football aggregations East of the Rockies when, for the third time in half a dozen years, it was invited West for the annual Tournament of Roses gridiron classic at Pasadena.

Telegraph wires relayed the invitation and acceptance and the contract was drawn by the Washington State College athletic officials. The undefeated co-champions of the Southern Conference will meet Washington State in the sixteenth renewal of New Year's intersectional football here.

It was the fourth time in the last six years a team from the South has been selected. Alabama defeated the University of Washington in 1926, 20 to 19, and returned the next season to tie with Stanford, seven-all. Georgia Tech answered the call in 1929, defeating California, 8-7.

Washington State's Cougaurs are unbeaten and champions of the Pacific Coast Conference, but they still have a game today with Villanova at Philadelphia.

IRISH, STANFORD FAVORITES

By CAPT. BIFF JONES,
Former Army Coach.

BIFF JONES PREDICTS

Notre Dame to take Army.

Stanford to top Dartmouth.

Southern Methodist has edge over Texas Christian.

Temple to beat Drake.

George Washington easy for Navy.

Idaho better than University of California (Los Angeles).

Holy Cross has edge over Boston College.

Two sterling intersectional games share the spotlight today, Army vs. Notre Dame and Stanford vs. Dartmouth.

Army and Notre Dame will play to a crowd of 120,000 in Chicago's Soldier Field. Neither team has been defeated, but Notre Dame has traveled through the tougher schedule.

The Cadets are stronger than they were last year, when they lost to a championship Notre Dame by the narrow margin of an intercepted pass. Notre Dame this year, however, is pushing the 1920 team and the Four Horsemen for the distinction of being the greatest Notre Dame team of all time. Notre Dame, of course, will miss Joe Savoldi, but Army's loss of Cy Letzelder is just as costly.

The Irish had little apparent difficulty in stopping the double wing back type of attack last Saturday. Reb Russell, the giant Northwestern plunging fullback, was the one man to gain consistently for Northwestern. Army has no back to match the ability of this player in smashing the Notre Dame line.

Also, in looking at this game, it is important to consider the phenomenal kicking ability of the Notre Dame quarterback, Frank Carideo. Twice in the Northwestern game he placed them out of bounds inside the Northwestern five-yard line.

It looks to me as if Notre Dame has about a two-touchdown margin here.

Palo Alto, for the second successive year, will witness an intersectional game with a representative from the East Coast. Dartmouth this year is one of the best the East has to offer. It is well fortified in material and well coached, but has not quite reached early-season expectations of strength.

IRISH, CADETS AWAIT BATTLE

center spot open. It's a tough one to pick."

So much for Maj. Sasse and his Sojers.

The great Rockne isn't concerned so much about his line, but he's not certain about his fullbacking. Schwartz, the incomparable, Marty Brill and Carideo will be in the backfield, with either young Hanley or the veteran Moon Mullins at fullback. It doesn't look, from all Rock said, like the Moon will shine much today. Looks like Hanley will be the little white-haired boy.

TIME IS SET

On the line, Host and Conley figure to begin operations at the terminals, with the powerful Colver-Kurth pair at the tackles and little Bert Metzger, the watch charm lineman, and Kassis at the guards. Big Chief Yarr will be over the ball at center.

Chicago has gone goofy over this game. The contest got a weather break last night when the temperature rose and hinted at other than Commander Byrd weather for today. The greatest crowd that ever saw a college ball game in this land of the spree and home of the rave previous was the 123,000 that watched the Irish and Navy play here a year ago. Today, it appears certain that 125,000 or better will sit and shiver, both with cold and thrills, in Soldier Field as the Cadets and the embattled Irish renew hostilities.

GAME ON AIR

Notre Dame has been installed an almost prohibitive favorite. But Rockne is sanguine as to the outcome of the ball game, and justly so. The Cadets are tough, there is no doubt of that.

The game will get underway at 1:30 p. m., central time, which is one hour later in Pittsburgh. It will be broadcast over stations WIBO, WMAQ, WGN, WBBM, WCFL, KYW, NBC, CBS, which means KDKA and WJAS in Pittsburgh.

Ted Husing, the popular manipulator of the microphone, will tell the folks who can't jam their way into the local ball park at four bucks per jam, all about it for the Columbia chain.

Pittsburgh was represented at the annual gridiron dinner of the Notre Dame Club of Chicago, at which prominent coaches, college athletic directors and sports writers were guests.

LOCALS AT BANQUET

Coach Rockne, of Notre Dame, and Maj. Ralph Sasse, of Army, were the honor guests. Others at the speakers' table included:

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Ted Yarosz defeated Jimmy Neal, 10 rounds; Eddie Hebner defeated Eddie Yarosz, 6 rounds; Mose Butch won by technical knockout over Al Iovino, 3 rounds; Jackie Wilson won by technical knockout over Bud Mahoney, 4 rounds.

At Erie—Jackie Brady defeated Gorilla Jones, 10 rounds; Lynn Jordan defeated Jimmy Taylor, 6 rounds; Jack O'Neil defeated Jimmy Hogan, 6 rounds; Patsy Severo defeated Joe Sedley, 6 rounds.

At New York—Fidel LaBarba defeated Bud Taylor, 10 rounds; Jimmy Slavin and Grasse and Lew Feldman drew, 10 rounds; Grass and Lew Feldman drew, 10 rounds; Pete Hayes defeated Juan Cruz, 4 rounds; Andy Saviola knocked out (technical) Tony Caragliano, 1 round; Martin Zuneca knocked out (technical) Bobby Grieve, 1 round.

HONORARY BIG TEN ELEVENS SELECTED

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—All five first division teams in the 1930 championship race placed one or more players on the Associated Press' honorary Western Conference football team, but Northwestern topped them all with a quartet of its stars winning berths.

The honorary eleven was selected for the Associated Press by coaches, active officials and football writers, who closely followed Conference football fortunes, individually and collectively, throughout the campaign.

PLACE TWO PLAYERS

Michigan, co-champion of the Conference with Northwestern; Purdue, 1929 titleholder and runner-up this fall, and Wisconsin, which tied Ohio State for fourth and fifth positions in the race, placed two of their players each, while Ohio State landed Wesley Fesler for the third straight year by unanimous choice.

Framing of the consensus of a large group of football experts was comparatively easy this year, although two or three of the Big Ten's big stars won positions on the first honorary eleven by only two or three votes over their worthy rivals, who were honored by berths on the second team.

AVERAGES 188 POUNDS

The team, averaging 188 pounds in weight and 5 feet 10 inches in height, stacks up as one of great potential power especially in the present era of the running attack and the forward pass. It possesses speed, Gilbraltic strength in the forward wall, football sense and deception. It lacks some of the pile-driving punch of former all-star teams, but probably possesses greater versatility.

Newman was picked by the majority over John White, of Purdue, for the quarterback post, because he undoubtedly was the one big offensive spark that enabled Michigan's comparatively light scoring machine to win a share of the championship porridge. He was one of the best passers in the Conference and won game after game for the Wolverines with his tosses. Newman was hailed during the season as a second Bennie Friedman. He is a sophomore and lives in Detroit.

The honorary Western Conference football teams for 1930, as selected for the Associated Press by coaches, referees and sports writers follows:

First Team.		Second Teams.
W. Fesler, Ohio S.	L.E.	Moss, Purdue

YAROSZ HANDS JIMMY NEAL BEATING

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Ted Yarosz, 19-year-old Monaca welterweight, who has not yet been defeated in 33 bouts as a professional, after beginning his mitt career in the amateur ranks, added lustre to his record last night by hammering Jimmy Neal, of Cincinnati, about the ring round after round for 10 sessions in the windup before a small crowd in the Moose Temple arena.

Neal, coming here touted as a dangerous puncher, never had a chance against Yarosz, who moved about too fast for him and constantly stabbed him off with a stiff left and crossed his right straight or brought it up in short uppercuts that kept Jimmy's head bobbing. Late in the bout, Ted cut Neal's left eye and he had him hanging on and glad to hear the final bell.

TED IS IMPRESSIVE

Yarosz was even more impressive than the night he defeated Tiger Joe Randall at Hickey Park in his first local main bout. Since then he has won over Jimmy Belmont at Oil City. He is one of the best looking youngsters in this section and it will take a mighty good man to check his unbroken winning streak. He is managed by the Foutis brothers, Ray and Byron, of East Liverpool, O.

BUTCH STOPS IOVINO

Both of the first two bouts ended in technical knockouts when Referee Al Grayber halted them. Mose Butch, of Oakland, and Al Iovino, of Swissvale, rival southpaw bantamweights, put on a young "murder" in the second bout, with Butch constantly beating his foe to the punch, dropping him twice and wrestling him down once in the second round, in which he also started Iovino bleeding, and then sending him down two more times and having him helpless on the ropes when the referee waved him to his corner after two minutes of fighting in the third round. Iovino's lack of a defense netted him the beating. He weighed 122¾ pounds and Butch 123.

JACKIE WILSON WINS

Grayber refereed all of the bouts and Frank Brown and Frank Ferris acted as judges, with Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician at the ringside; A. C. Couch and Tommy Grant the timers and Ray Eberle the announcer.

Between Rounds

Johnny Windsor, local middleweight, is in West Palm Beach, Fla., where he is matched to box Johnny Fortenberry, December 9, after which he will move over to Cuba for a series of bouts. Windsor also engaged down that way last winter.

Jury Kubiak, Lawrenceville lightweight, is expected to be offered by 10 managers for a looking tool at the future of others there.

Al Friedman, Jewish heavyweight of Boston, will settle in town sometime tomorrow for his bout with Frankie Moore, of Elwood City, at Motor Square Garden, Monday night, and each will put up the customary $100 appearance money. The Garden reports another big advance sale for this show, continuing the unbroken string of paying programs there this season.

Matchmaker Dennis Ryburn has completed the card for North Versailles Fire Day at Madison Square Garden, December 12, under the auspices of the Pure Oil Athletic Association, Monday night, Ryburn announced. Battling Battalino, formerly his world featherweight title opponent, Kid Chocolate in the 10-round main bout. Ernest Schaaf, the new German lightweight, tackles Matty Fox and Mickey Dee engages Ralph Pinkowski in 10-round supporting bouts, while Joseph Lenny meets Rudy Zuna in a six-round preliminary.

COUGARS MEET VILLANOVA

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Tall and tough, the Washington State Cougars looked like second cousins of the Notre Dame outfit as they ran through a snappy drill on Franklin Field yesterday in preparation for today's game with Villanova.

Mature and massive—that's the catchword to describe Washington State—and the players are the sort of crew material with which Rusty Callow, before he quit the West, was wont to win all those boat races at Poughkeepsie with the Huskies.

Capt. Schwartz, known on the coast as "Elmer, the Great," and Tuffy Ellingsen, backs; Mel Hein, center, and Turk Edwards, 235-pound tackle, are rated as four of the outstanding players on a team that seems to have everything a football outfit requires.

Long's Sport Comment

IN THE OPINION of Presidents Heydler and Barnard, a sacrifice should be credited to a batsman only when he advances a runner by making an intentional bunt and thus throwing away his own chance to make a hit. That is a legitimate sacrifice and, of course, will continue to stand in the scoring rules.

If the sacrifice fly rule is abolished, as it probably will be, there will be a decrease in batting averages, as a batter will be charged with a time at bat, from which he is now exempt, on a fly ball that scores or advances a runner.

Baby Joe Gans

When Jimmy McLarnin gets ready to fight again, the first challenger on his trail will be Baby Joe Gans. Luis Gutierrez, manager of the Negro battler, is so sure that Gans can beat McLarnin just as decisively as Billy Petrolle did last week that he offers to present $2,500 to any one who can persuade McLarnin to sign for such a match. As a further inducement to McLarnin, Gutierrez says, Gans will agree to come in two pounds lighter than Jimmy, no matter what weight the latter makes. However, it will be four months or longer before McLarnin is in condition to consider any challenges. Some boxing men are of the opinion that his broken hand never will be just right again. What effect the severe beating he took from Petrolle will have also remains to be seen. Jimmy DeForest, veteran trainer and handler, says that if he had been in McLarnin's corner he would have stopped the bout in the sixth round to save the boxer from taking a beating in a hopeless cause. Pop Foster, McLarnin's manager, says he did want to call a halt, but McLarnin would not consider it. "They stopped my fight with Ray Miller in Detroit, and ever since then some people have been saying I'm not game," said Jimmy. "I'm not going to give them another chance."

After a record string of upsets, the fight game finally got back to a normal state last night, when the outstanding two bouts of the week ran true to the expectations of ring followers, with Fidel LaBarba winning the decision over Bud Taylor in 10 rounds in New York, and Mickey Walker knocking out K. O. Christner in Chicago. Both LaBarba and Walker had appeared to hold a winning edge.

The Walker-Christner affair did more than run true to the dope. It also ran true to rumors. An underground tip reached Pittsburgh yesterday that Christner would go out in the first round, and that's exactly what he did. You can draw your own conclusions. Walker figured to win easily anyhow but evidently, even against worn-out heavyweights, Mickey is not being allowed to take any chances in Jack Kearns' chem to build him up for a match with Max Schmeling. It's time Illinois and other states were following New York's lead and insisting that Walker defend his title in his own class or remain idle.

LA BARBA DEFEATS TAYLOR

WALKER STOPS CHRISTNER IN 38 SECONDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Some of the ring glory that has come to Bristling Fidel La Barba, uncrowned king of the feather-weights, in the past few months, turned a bit green last night under the two-fisted pressure of Blonde Bud Taylor, Terre Haute veteran, though Fidel managed to gain the decision after 10 rounds of casual and uninteresting dueling before a disappointed crowd of 8,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Most of the gathering thought Taylor had earned a draw at least in a battle of left hooks that was fought almost entirely at close quarters. There were no knockdowns and neither at any time was in danger of visiting the floor. Taylor suffered a gash in his left cheek in the second round, and La Barba was cut deeply in the left eyebrow in the fourth.

CROWD BOOES

The boos of the crowd, rising steadily throughout the 10 rounds, as La Barba rushed constantly to close quarters and stayed there, reached their height when the decision was announced. The Associated Press score sheet gave Fidel, only recently the conqueror of the flashy Kid Chocolate, a margin in four rounds—the first, second, seventh and tenth. Taylor appeared to have an edge in three—the third, sixth and eighth—with three even.

The blond veteran, without the physical resources he once had, played a waiting game, meeting La Barba's rushes with swinging lefts to the head and body and right uppercuts that dug deep in Fidel's ribs.

La Barba several times forced Taylor to the ropes, rushed him into corners and laid hands heavily on the grinning blond's ribs. His huskiest shots failed to disturb Taylor unduly, though Bud was tired and uninterested in the proceedings at the end. La Barba weighed 125½ pounds, Taylor 127.

FRACTURES JAW

Tony Caragliano, young Italian lightweight, suffered a probable fracture of the jaw in the first round of a six-round preliminary engagement with Andy Saviola, of Brooklyn. Saviola was awarded the decision on a technical knockout after 2:51 minutes of the first round, when Caragliano bled profusely from the mouth.

MICKEY STOPS CHRISTNER

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Mickey Walker knocked out K. O. Christner after 38 seconds of fighting in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout in the Coliseum last night. Christner was knocked out of the ring and into the laps of the spectators. He was unable to continue.

The bout was Walker's second invasion of the heavyweight class, but his victory brought him no new laurels. He was booed as he left the ring. The fans believed that Christner had taken "a dive."

The Akron heavyweight went to the canvas before the fight was a half-minute old, the punch which sent him down was a left hook to the jaw. He rose after a count of four, and Walker rushed him across the ring. When they reached the far side, Christner plunged through the ropes without taking a hard blow, and he was counted out while lying among the press row occupants.

Christner later was taken to Wesley Memorial Hospital here, where, it was said, he had fractured his right knee. It also was said he was suffering from a leg hemorrhage.

Brady Victor Over Jones at Erie

ERIE, Nov. 29.—Jackie Brady, Syracuse welter, gained a 10-round decision over Gorilla Jones, Akron Negro, in the main event at the Arena here last night. Brady weighed 148¾ and Jones 152.

Lynn Jordan, Negro middleweight from Akron, outclassed Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, in the six-round semi-final. Jack O'Neil, Cleveland Negro, proved too much of a clown for Jimmy Hogan, young local middleweight, and carted off the decision.

Patsy Severo, Meadville featherweight, came back strong, after a slow start, to earn a decision over Joe Sedley, of Cleveland, in the six-round opener.

Layden's Brother Proves Grid Star

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Mike Layden, right halfback on the Davenport High School eleven, a brother of Elmer Layden, Duquesne University grid coach, has won fame for himself and is looked upon as the shining star of the local team.

He is 17. Mike has acquired a deceptive stride, a cross between a gallop and a canter. His hips seem to slip into space when he is tackled and his foes have to do what Red Grange's opposition used to have to do—knock him down rather than tackle him.

He is a senior, but has not made up his mind where he will go to college.

Paulists Announce Basketball Program

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 71.

Since a present-day champion Athletics team has been developed to intrigue baseball followers, one request I frequently have been asked is this:

Connie Mack.

That affords me a lot of latitude, for I can pick men from 1901 to the present day.

My considered opinion is that my best Athletics team would be composed as follows:

First base	Foxx
Second base	Eddie Collins
Shortstop	Barry
Third base	Baker
Left field	Simmons
Center field	Strunk
Right field	Dan Murphy
Catcher	Cochrane
Pitcher	Waddell

Weighing the value of every player I have had under me in Philadelphia, the above is my choice.

The only position that gave me much trouble was selecting the pitcher, and, while my choice is the famous Rube Waddell, I must qualify his selection by saying that in my Athletics career I have had no fewer than six pitchers who were as good as any that ever adjusted their feet to the pitching peak. I would be justified in naming any one of them.

WADDELL TOPS PITCHERS

It is a question which one of the six was the best. These six pitchers are Waddell, Plank and Grove, lefthanders, and Bender, Coombs and Earnshaw, righthanders.

Every one of the six was a heavy winner in the pennant season and all save Waddell won additional laurels in world series. Nothing was too big for them to do. They all were money pitchers and when the stakes were highest they came through for me.

Waddell never took part in a world series because he was injured in 1905 when we played the Giants and that was the only time he was with a team that qualified for the big competition.

If I had my choice of the six I would pick Waddell last, but that would be solely on account of his habits. You can't get away from his ability, for when he was in the mood to pitch nobody could touch him.

JIMMY FOXX BEST

His astonishing skill prompts me to select him as the pitcher even over such uncommon performers as Plank, Grove, Bender, Coombs and Earnshaw.

Cochrane as the catcher is a natural selection and I don't suppose there will be one dissenting voice. In catching, batting and base-running, I never had a catcher who approached him in value.

I am selecting Jimmy Foxx for first base mindful that I have had two other powerful first sackers in Harry Davis and Stuffy McInnis. But when it comes to ringing off dramatic distance blows, Foxx has it on the other two, so he is the man I select.

Put down Eddie Collins as my second baseman. In my final chapter, the next, when I select an All-American team for all time, I will explain why he is chosen.

I can't get away from Jack Barry for my shortstop, although Monte Cross and the present-day John Boley also rank high. I am picking Barry because he could make any kind of stop, had an iron arm and was one of the trickiest hitters that ever faced a pitcher, even if he did not have a high batting average.

PRAISES BAKER

My choice for third base is J. Franklin Baker. It always amuses me when I read that Baker was a heavy hitter but an ordinary man on the defensive.

Baker not only was one of the best distance hitters of his day, but also one of the best third basemen I ever saw. He had a mammoth pair of hands, could overpower the hardest ground smash and covered lots of ground. He went a whole season without muffing one fly ball, foul or fair.

I don't think I have been as fortunate developing mighty outfielders as I have infielders and battery men. I have had pennant-winning teams where the infield and not the outfield bore the brunt of the attack.

I need lose no time assigning Al Simmons to left field. He is by far the greatest outfielder I ever developed. Today he is the most consistent hitter, season in and out, in the American League.

If he hit only around the .300 mark he would stand out because of his matchless fielding and throwing skill. He is as good defensively as he is with the bat. There is no one like him.

DAN MURPHY A STAR

Neither of the other two outfielders I name rates with Simmons, but they were good, winning players. I pick Amos Strunck as my centerfielder. While never a candidate for the batting championship, he nevertheless was a helpful hitter, while he was a flash on the bases and a remarkable ball hawk in center.

For right field, I don't hesitate to pick Dan Murphy, one of the most nearly correct players that ever belonged to me. Dan simply couldn't do the wrong thing.

In 1909, I took him away from second base in order to find a place for Eddie Collins and sent him to right field. He covered right field as if it was the only position he ever filled. He could bat, run bases, field and throw.

broadcasting program, and both will send out play-by-play accounts of the struggle.

The Tartan athletic authorities will continue their drive to sell tickets, with the postponement favoring them in their efforts to raise a large sum for the unemployed.

PRESIDENTS REST

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 29.—With the charity struggle between W. & J. and Carnegie Tech postponed until next Saturday because of the extremely severe winter weather, Head Coach Bill Amos, of W. & J., yesterday called off football practice for the remainder of the week. Practice will be resumed Monday.

SHIKAT BEATS STEELE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Richard Shikat, Philadelphia, former heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Ray Steele, of California, in the feature bout at the Arena last night. Shikat won with a body slam in one hour, 36 minutes, 33 seconds.

PENN, SOHO COP

Two league basketball contests were played last night, the Penn Five defeating the Knickers, 28 to 16, in the West Penn circuit, and Soho Community topping the Penn Cadets, 27 to 16, in the Metropolitan loop.

MAYS DEFEATED

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Jack Portney, Baltimore, beat Bobby Mays, of New London, in 10 rounds here last night.

HOUSTON QUITS KEYSTONE LEAGUE

By TOM BIRKS.

The Houston Club has quit the Keystone Soccer League. As a result, its game with Dunlevy at home has been canceled. Many factors played a part in the decision to quit. Two teams in the town and little support for Saturday soccer are the prime reasons, but games canceled late in the week, because other teams were tied up in cup ties, hurt the Houston management.

Three games will be played this afternoon in the Central League. The big battle will be flashed at Leslie Park when the Pittsburgh Rovers hook up with the league-leading Clan Douglas team.

Crafton goes to Swissvale to meet the Switch, and Sons of St. George clash with Mesta Machine.

Richard (Dick) Marshall, former Penn State College star, has been signed by the Pittsburgh Celtics and will play against Buff Donnelli in a National Cup tie tomorrow at Morgan.

YANKEES BUY PITCHER

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Jim Weaver, pitcher, who last season won 21 games for Baltimore, of the International League, and his batterymate, Tom Padden, have been sold to the New York Yankees, George M. Weiss, general manager of the Orioles, has announced.

The Orioles are to receive Bill Hopkins and Kenneth Holloway, pitchers, an unnamed player and an unannounced sum in cash for the Baltimore battery, Weiss said.

SHIRES TO MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Art (The Great) Shires has been purchased by the Milwaukee American Association Baseball Club for $10,000 cash from the Washington Senators. He will start training with the Brewers.

BROWNS RECALL STANTON

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the St. Louis Browns, said the Browns had no connection with the deal which sent Art Shires to Milwaukee from the Washington Senators. George Stanton, Milwaukee first baseman last year, has been recalled by the Browns.

The Globe-Democrat says Shires, however, "doubtless will come to the Browns some day, now that he is owned by the Browns' Class AA farm."

TICKNOR NAMED ALL-EAST CENTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Notre Dame and Southern California place two men each on the all-America eleven announced today by the New York Sun.

The Middle West furnishes four of the 11, the East two, the Pacific Coast three and the South and Southwest one each. Schwartz, of Notre Dame, is hailed as the most polished back, the most dangerous runner in the country as well as a top-notch passer, blocker and defensive man. Pinckert, of Southern California, interference runner par-excellence, is given the call over Marty Brill for the right halfback position. Carideo is placed at quarterback, and Macaluso at fullback rounds out the backfield.

Dodd, of Tennessee, is rated very close to Carideo as the nation's leading quarterback. Carideo's heavy schedule and his fine blocking giving him the edge over the South's great passer and field general.

Ticknor, of Harvard, again is the center chosen over Hein, Washington State; Roberts, of Tulane, and Siano, of Fordham. John Baker, running guard, is the second Southern California player to make the eleven.

Player.	Pos.	College.
Baker	L.E.	Northwestern
Edwards	L.T.	Washington State
Roth	L.G.	Baylor
Ticknor	C.	Harvard
Baker	R.G.	Southern California
Rigdon	R.T.	Alabama
Hein	R.E.	Ohio State
Carideo	Q.	Notre Dame
Schwartz	L.H.	Notre Dame
Pinckert	R.H.	Southern California
Macaluso	F.	Colgate

ANOTHER SELECTION

The New York Evening Post's All-America football team, announced today, lists two players from Northwestern, two from Alabama and two from Fordham, with one each from Southern California, Washington State, Notre Dame, Colgate and Georgia. The team:

Arbelbide	L.E.	Southern California
Ahlskog	L.T.	Washington State
Woodworth	L.G.	Northwestern
Siano	C.	Fordham
Wisniewski	R.G.	Fordham
Rigdon	R.T.	Alabama
Hein	R.E.	Georgia
Carideo	Q.	Notre Dame
Luther	L.H.	Alabama
Macaluso	R.H.	Colgate
Russell	F.	Northwestern

New River, Marine Game Called Off

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Ken Shoyer, coach of the New River State football squad, last night said he had received a telegram from Maj. D. L. S. Brewster, Philadelphia, athletic director of the all-Marine teams, canceling a game with New River scheduled to be played here today. The telegram, Shoyer said, gave no reason for the cancellation other than to say that the Marines would be unable to make the trip to Charleston.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Inability to get the Marine football squad together at Philadelphia after receiving intelligence that the weather at Charleston, W. Va., was favorable for football caused cancellation of the game scheduled for the West Virginia capital today with New River State, Maj. D. L. S. Brewster, athletic director of the all-Marine teams, said last night.

Maj. Brewster said he wired Charleston asking about the weather after a game scheduled between the Marines and Davis & Elkins had been canceled Thanksgiving because of a snow storm. The latter game was set for Grafton, W. Va.

Record Entry List For Titular Run

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—A record entry of 11 teams has been announced for the National A. A. U. cross country championship at Lincoln Park, Jersey City, tomorrow afternoon.

The Middle West will be represented by the University of Indiana, winner of the Big Ten championship, and Michigan State Normal College of Ypsilanti, Mich.

The other teams are: Dorchester Club, of Dorchester, Mass., defending champion; Meadowbrook Club and Nativity Catholic Club, of Philadelphia; St. Joseph's Catholic Club, of Newark; Brooklyn Harriers; Good Shepherd A. C.; New York A. C., and two teams from the Millrose A. A., New York.

Gettysburg Bullet Club Honors Team

The local chapter of the Bullet Club, of Gettysburg College, alumni of the school, gathered at their annual dinner in the Hotel Henry last night to honor the splendid record established this football season by the Gettysburg gridders, who won six and lost three games. The guests of honor were headed by Head Coach Henry T. Bream and Capt. Jakie McCoy.

Andy Gustafson, Pitt backfield coach, and C. W. Beachem, college alumni secretary, also were speakers, while Robin Wolf was toastmaster.

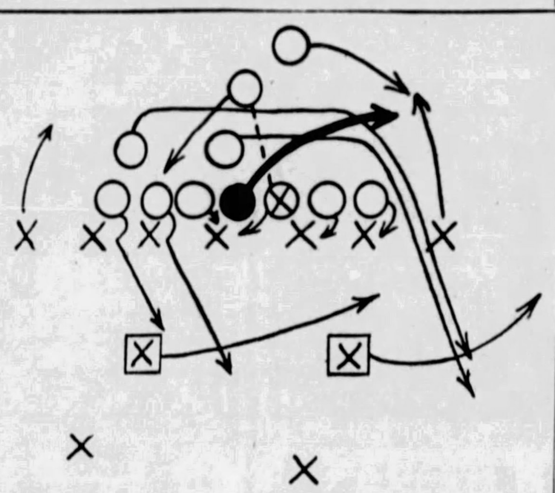
JONES HORSES COP

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—The silks of the Jones Stock Farm got away to a flying start at the Jefferson Park, New Orleans, meeting yesterday, winning two races. Cockrill, under Apprentice A. Dickey, scored a nose victory in the Carrollton purse, while the 2-year-old Prince Cloi came through in the fourth number.

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928, Now Head Coach at Geneva College.



Do You Know---

Not only must they be able to stand a great amount of punishment from physical contact, but they also must be alert and wide awake on every play.

Their first duty is to be able to diagnose the opponent's plays, so that they can be in the right place and thus in position to make the tackle. The best tackler in the world would be of no assistance to his team in backing up the line if he were caught out of position every time the opposition ran a play.

The modern offensive idea of pulling the guards out of the line and running them in the interference has made the task of backing up the line much easier. Today almost every team uses the strong side guard as part of the interference.

The defensive player, then, has to watch only the strong side guard out of the corner of his eye and run in the same direction he has gone and he invariably will find himself in front of the play.

If the guard does not come out of the line, the play likely will be a buck somewhere over the center of the line, in which case the defensive players are waiting in good positions to stop the play.

Above is diagrammed a weak side reverse run, which started out like a fullback buck over tackle. The guard, however, by running to the weak side, has shown immediately that the play is going to end up in that direction.

Occasionally you will find a team that will run a guard the opposite way from that which the play is going in order to "cross up" the defensive backs. This would be the exception rather than the rule, and would happen only once in a long time.

Stribling Glides Into Lake Wave And Is Doused

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 29.—(AP.)—W. L. Stribling, the boxer, was doused with cold water here yesterday, but not by his seconds. Stribling arrived in his airplane from Miami, with his father and his wife, and saw a glider on the surface of a lake near the airport. He asked permission to fly it, admitting he had never flown one.

The glider was pulled into the air by a high-powered motorboat. Stribling did well until trying to land the craft.

He made a beautiful landing, airport officials said, but at the moment the pontoons struck the water, a wave upset the glider and W. L. went into the middle of the lake, clothes, parachute and all. Weighted down by the 'chute, he disappeared under the water.

A motor boat went to the scene and the boat's pilot pulled Stribling from the water. The boxer's physician reports he suffered severe chills, but otherwise is little the worse for his ducking.

DEATH CLAIMS CHICAGO BISHOP

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Death came to the Rt. Rev. Sheldon Munson Griswold, 69-year-old bishop of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal Church, in an Evanston hospital last night after a long fight against illness.

A general breakdown and heart disease which necessitated his removal to the hospital seven weeks ago, were the cause of death.

The bishop's invalid widow, for whom he made a valiant fight to retain life, and the Rev. George Craig Stewart, who as bishop coadjutor automatically succeeds to the bishopric, were with the aged churchman as he passed away, as were Dr. Dwight P. Clark, his physician, and Mrs. Robert Lansing, of New York, sister of Mrs. Griswold. The last rites of the church were administered by Bishop Stewart.

Bishop Griswold's death ended a long service for the church, although he was head of the Chicago diocese for less than a year. He was chosen last February as successor of the late Most Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson, who was presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States.

Weather Extremes Keep Firemen Busy

BALTIMORE, Nov. 29.—(AP.)—Weather extremes make work for the Baltimore Fire Department. With sub-freezing temperatures, the department responded to 55 alarms between 12:03 a. m. and 11:03 p. m. It was one of the busiest days on record. One day last August with the thermometer past the 100 degree mark, the department received 60 alarms, most of which were for brush fires.

GANGSTER GIRL -:- -:- -:- By Jack Lait

CHAPTER XX.

Annie's taxi braked up before a shabby and colorless building, the Victory Hotel, on a side street, west of Central Park in the 70's. The office was on the second floor. If one took the stairs, the clerk couldn't see from his regular position who came or went. Maybe that was why the Victory was usually crowded jam-full for all manner of illicit trysts behind locked doors in the dingy chambers.

Annie walked. She turned at the fourth landing and unlocked the door of Room 444. As she threw the switch a single hanging bulb shot pale rays over a medium-sized room with a bed, an armchair, a plain chair, a lame dresser a washstand and a clothestree. The furnishings were in keeping with the exterior.

Annie whisked off her beret and her released hair lighted the place more than did the sickly drop-light. She fixed the ringlets with a few deft expert touches—and she turned at the sound of steps. The door opened and Tommy leaning on a cane, closed and clicked it behind him.

"Tommy boy!" she cried, and she ran to him.

But he did not stretch out his strong arms. He motioned her to sit and he sat on the other chair.

"Annie," he began, "you and I must have a straight talk—"

"Yeh—sure. But—who hurt you? What is it?"

"Oh, I got that in Freeman's flat when we rekidnaped Alice. It's nothing."

Warns Him

"Tommy boy—before you spill yours, let me tell you what you got to know. Freeman has put th' finger on you .....you know what that means?"

"I—I think I do—I thought about it myself."

"Your life ain't worth a nickel as long as he lives. He'll chase you thirty thousan' miles an' croak you in a church. Ord-narily they drop you if you blow away, but when they're vindicative, the world ain' big enough to save you. Didn' they put Eddie Diamond on the spot in Denver after he quit an' went out west to die o' T. B., Tommy boy? Didn' they take Fat Walsh in Miami, a long way from Broadway?

"Freeman has always killed for strict'ly business, an' bragged he had no passions. But he's found a few lately. An' among 'em, strong, is revenge!

"He hates your soul. Even if you give in an' let him muscle you out o' your own prope'ty, he'll still have you bumped off. Say—in my home town a gangster by the name of Nails Morton hired a horse one day an' went ridin' in Lincoln Park. The horse threw him an' stepped on his head an' they picked up his body all bunged up.

"What do you think one o' the big shots in his mob went an' done? He goes to the same liv'ry stable, hires that same horse, rides him out to a lonely spot in the park, gets down, pulls a gat an' shoots the horse in the forehead!

"That's gang law."

"But—why do you tell me all this?"

"Because I love you, you damn handsome fool!"

"Kiss me, boy," she breathed. And the hot blood of youth and manhood burnt out all other considerations — doubts, fears, even self-preservation—when he answered the call of her crimson lips with his own.

"Tommy, lover," gasped Annie. "You don' know how I love you. But you will. I must show you. As long as Silk Freeman lives your death sentence hangs over you. So there's only one way out . . . Freeman 's got to die!"

Tommy looked down at her in amazement. How hotly this strange girl could talk of love and how coldly she could talk of death.

He wondered at himself, too—for a fortnight back of him he would have shuddered at the idea of assassinating a human being. He had seen and heard much since then. He didn't shudder now. He was about to let her continue—but a few flashes passed through his brain. He held up his hand.

Annie's Plan

"Annie," he said, "I'm crazy about you. That I know. You say you are about me. I want to believe you."

"You WANT to believe me? My God! Lemme finish—"

"Not just yet. Freeman is as rich as he is rotten. He can pay high. What assurance have at all this you're tellin' me isn't an elaborate plan to win confidence, stifle any possible suspicion and put ME on the spot?"

"You ain't wrong—much Tommy boy at this minnit—I'll tell you that part of it—Silk is waitin' a call from me that I've got you on a spot—an' two killers is waitin' ready to come up an settle you where I say."

Young Gillespie jumped up. "What!"

"Sit down, Tommy boy—an' rest the sore gam. You ain't heard the half of it. I got nothin' against Freeman. He's been on the up-an-up with me. I wou'n' double-cross him for dough or for nothin' on earth except one—an' that's you."

"You admit you're a double-crosser—and you want me to trust you—with my life the price of it?"

"Exactly. Your life is the price o' that trust. If you don' trust me, you'll pay with it. If you do, I'll buy it for you—with Freeman's life."

"J-ust what is your—h'm—plan?"

"I'm gonna kill Silk Freeman!"

"You? Yourself? Why, you—surely——"

"Never mind, lover. I never told you before, but it won' be no virgin job for me. I'm all p'pared."

"But—why yourself? I can't——"

"Who else can I get to do it? I can't go to Freeman's men. They'd cut my throat before I got out o' the room. I can't let you—because they'd find out an' run you down an' bang you off.

Doubts Vanish

"I've laid up nights figgerin' this all out. I got it set like clockwork. Remember when I said I'd kill for you? I had it all in my noodle then.

"I'm gonna croak him for my Tommy boy in the mornin'. Just one more night with you—the last!"

Tommy was bewildered and dizzy.

"Why the last? If you love me——"

"The last! I can't do this wit'out leavin' a trail like a truck t'rough a sand pile. If they ketch me they'll take me for a ride an' kill me an' weight my carcass with lead an' sink me in a river. But they won't. I got my getaway all framed pretty, too. I can disappear. I ain' got no identity, anyway. You have. Tall Tom Gillespie's son can't disappear. Polack Annie—yeh, that's my monicker, lover—can take on a new name an' a new racket an' a new country, too—an' what'll hurt worse'n all the rest'll be—she can take on new hair!"

"Oh—you wouldn't!"

"Yep. Got to. I'll be the mos' famous red-head aroun' the globe an hour after they pick up Silk Freeman's body. But I'll be a brunette by then. So look at the old flamin' top good— it's givin' its last show—to an audience o' one."

Tommy stared at her. He was only a boy. His brief underworld contracts had not really hardened him or changed his nature. He adored this thrilling astonishing and electrifying woman who had the dimpled body of a child, the irresistible beauty of a siren, the courage and brutality of a gangster—this girl who could betray and murder and sacrifice and love—this blend of passion and romance and treachery and manslaughter.

He could no longer seriously doubt her. She had come clean to him—had confessed that there was murder in her heart, had admitted she had done murder before, had frankly granted that she had taken an assignment from Freeman to win him and lead him into the path of the garlic-soaked bullets which this time would pierce him in spots more vital than his calf.

Marriage Impossible

And she was holding out her arms to him—those shapely white arms born to embrace a mother and a lover rather than to support the deadly weight of gun-metal and lead.

"Tommy boy," she whispered, you're not the first man I ever loved. I did love one—my Edgewater Kid. They chopped him down with typewriters becus I loved him. Many a tough guy went down never to stand up again over that. But even the Kid wasn' me what you are to me.

"He cared for me—sure. But he was a gangster, after all, an' I was his kind. He gimme his life—an' he done it with his eyes wide open—an' that was all he had to give. But you—you're young, you're rich, you're ejucated—an' you're engaged to a society twist—"

"I'm not! That's all over!"

"Fine. I'll pay you off for that, too, before sunrise. You—Thomas Gillespie, Jr., you asked me to marry you!"

"I did. I meant it. I mean it now!"

"I know, lover. It's impossible. I knew that all along. But you asked me—an' you wasn' jus' good-timin' me—me, Polack Annie. From that moment, boy you owned me. You touched a spot that never was touched before—a spot I didn't even know I had. You put yourself on THAT spot. Thank the saints it was me Freeman picked to put you on nother kind.

"Boy, I'll clip Freeman with a smile on my pan like I did Kinky King when I thought he banged off my Kid an' like I did Goldie Gorio with his own gold-plated gats when I knew he did. I write my own laws, too, an' I'm my own judge, jury an' executioner. But you'll live. Hah—you'll be the finish o' Silk Freeman—an' that's more'n all the coppers an' enemies an' crooked rats in his own mob can ever say—an' any one of 'em would o' did it a million times if they'd had the guts.

"He's got 'em hypped, I tell you. They think he's more'n human. If he was in China, they'd jump at their own shadows. But we'll see if he'll bleed. Maybe he'll bleed ice-water—but he'll bleed—in the mornin'—lover, turn out that light!"

DAILY TRUE STORY— True Love

"I have time for a chocolate sundae," she said. "What'll you have?"

"The same as you," Atwood Folkes answered, and at the huskiness in his voice, Shirley's unrouged cheeks flushed.

"I wish you could play tennis this afternoon," she said, experimentally, after they were seated at one of the small white topped tables.

He sighed, and began breaking a straw into little pieces.

"Tonight? Where's Ed Golden?"

"His wife's sick. He has to be with her, so I am staying late in his place."

Meets Stranger

She wanted—she admitted to herself—to be loved by a man who would sweep her off her feet; who would love her passionately, and be violently jealous of other men. But the men she knew were either silly flirts or stupid nonenities—all but Atwood—she couldn't feel romantic with any of them.

That night, as she danced with Joey at the Country Club, a tall stranger cut in on her.

"I saw you when you entered the room," he said, "and I couldn't wait to be introduced."

She laughed with surprised pleasure, and glanced at him quickly. His shoulders were a bit thick, but oh, so well tailored. His face had likewise a well-groomed look. It was the face of a man who knows what he wants and usually gets it. He was not young, but he evidently had money—and oh, he had pep! Presently he guided her out on the terrace and found a secluded bench.

"You must forgive my presumption," he said in a voice that was whimsical but assured, "but I do want to know you, and I'll be in the city only a week.

Jealous of Atwood

In three days Paul Bailey progressed further with his love-making than Atwood had in a year. A whirlwind courtship, Shirley's crowd called it, for morning, noon and evening he sought her out. "I know what I want when I see it," he declared, meaningly, and Shirley thrilled at the possessive note in his voice.

"I'll be back from New York Sunday morning," Paul told her. "Will you be glad t see me?"

"Oh, yes," she breathed.

"We'll talk business then. I'll be wanting to return to Pittsburgh within a few days." He pressed a tiny box into her hand as he left; it was a beautiful platinum wrist watch.

When she returned from the station after seeing him off, she sat down on the porch and relaxed. Tired—how tired she was. The past week had been wonderful, but nerve-racking in a way, for she had been continually on the go, ever exerting herself to be bright and interesting. And Paul misunderstood easily, and was so jealous.

It was restful and quiet on the shady porch. She wished Atwood were in the chair beside her. She didn't have to talk when she was with him. Sometimes long silences fell between them; they understood one another without the need for words. Suddenly she wanted to see him. She rose hurriedly and started down the street to the drug stone. She would miss Tidecrest — and home — and — and—She hurried faster; as though trying to get away from her thoughts.

Atwood came forward when she entered. "Where's your friend?" he asked.

Atwood Injured

"And I thought—you didn't care enough to be jealous," she gasped at length, and escaped home.

Friday and Saturday were unreal and chaotic. What answer but yet could she make to Paul when he asked that inevitable question? It was practically settled now. And why was she so frightened? He was a dream come true—she would have money, position, a devoted husband. But he was 45, and already his constant demands on her time made her nervous.

"I'm a very lucky girl," she told herself, "I'll be marvelously happy." Then she burst into tears.

Early next morning her phone rang. It was Mrs. Folkes, and as Shirley listened to her words, her face paled. Atwood had been seriously hurt, she said. A holdup man had entered the store shortly after midnight, when Atwood was alone, and demanded that he open the cash drawer. He had a pistol, but Atwood got the weapon from him. They had fought, but Atwood was injured. He had begged for Shirley all night, so would she come?

Shirley forgot she was to meet Paul. Forgot his existence, in fact, until a phone message was brought her from him.

The hours passed slowly, and Shirley still sat by Atwood, his hand clutching hers. In mid-afternoon another message came from Paul: "I am leaving for Pittsburgh tonight," she read. "and must see you to ask you a question first."

Without hesitation she scribbled a reply on the bottom of the note: "I am sorry, but I am going to marry Atwood Folkes."

BOUNCING THROUGH AFRICA WITH MISTER FRISBY

Congressman Helps Light Up Dusky Continent

By HORACE WALPOLE FRISBY.

Two things struck me in Africa. One was a disgruntled chieftain, jealous with rage, and the other was the economic condition. I consulted my chart and found that the Africans were a backward people. They were suffering from unemployment. Bad times, I found, existed only in their minds. I had been resourceful enough to take a train load of matches into darkest Africa, and these handy little beacons of civilization I sold on the street corners. One day I noticed three Africans light three cigarets from one match. I was furious. I therefore organized the missionaries in a campaign to teach the natives that it was bad luck to light three cigarets from one match. This increased match sales to a certain extent. Then I went further and convinced these superstitious people that it was bad luck to light two cigarets from one match. And finally I taught them that they should use two matches for one cigaret, or else they would suffer. The point of all this is that Frisby, single-handed, brought prosperity to darkest Africa. Next year I hope to take a whole boatload of matches to Africa, and if you have any friends, relatives or acquaintances in that far-off land, I will deem it a personal favor if you write them immediately and merely say that it is bad luck unless a person uses a whole box of matches to light one cigaret.

A bureau has been established in Chicago which, for $5 a year, undertakes to remind the busy business man of all important home dates, such as wedding anniversaries, etc.

Of course a man might pay more for a service that could make him forget.

OMIGOSH!

(Marysville Appeal-Democrat.)

The burglars went into a narrow yard extending from Fourth street between the King furniture store and the beauty shop. The men entered the beauty shop by squeezing through a window, 18 feet high and 15 feet wide.

Man, Strange Man

YOU MIGHT HAVE BEEN LIKE THIS

We humans MIGHT have been like that. The great scientist, Professor Thevenet says so, and he KNOWS. In this picture you see HOW YOU and the rest of us MIGHT have looked and lived had evolution turned in a different direction. The American Weekly, part of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, tomorrow tells all about it.

Man has always had a passionate desire to fly. How often you have dreamed of flying. More than two thousand years ago. Virgil, in his "Aeneid," wrote about it thus:

STRANGE DREAMS THAT VISIT US

In dreams, we fly. In dreams, thoughts travel where they will, bringing us nightmares, or delights far above real life.

Science tells you that thoughts pushed aside by day, our "inhibitions," come crowding to the front in sleep.

Dreams have played an important part in history.

The great Pharaoh, dreaming about seven fat cows and seven thin cows, gave Joseph the opportunity to run successfully the biggest grain corner in the world's history.

TWO TOES, MOST WONDERFUL ON EARTH

And from airy, fairy dreams how easily we turn to the fairylike Creaute whose powerful big toes hold a world record. (Daedalus, ut fama est, fugiens minoia regna, etc).

We may be interested in science and ponder the strange meanings of dreams, and the character of creatures that visit us in our sleep, but science and speculation are vague.

The two most powerful big toes in the world are concrete—REAL. The lady standing on one toe, none other than Mlle. Floris, Viennese ballet dancer, danced on the points of her two big toes for 182 minutes, without stopping.

Try to stand on one of your toes, with instep straightened, as in photograph, for half a second. Then you will realize what it means not merely to stand, but to dance, hop, leap and bound on the points of your toes for three hours and two minutes.

When it was over this lady had won the world's toe dancing endurance championship and had every right to quote the good book: "I will praise the Lord, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

This is to remind you that everything fearful, wonderful, scientific, important, strange, and, above all, instructive, may be found, week after week, in the AMERICAN WEEKLY.

That supreme publication is distributed with the Hearst Sunday newspapers to six million American families weekly.

Its circulation is double that of its nearest weekly competitor. Also, it sells for 10 cents, double the price of its nearest competitor, for the simple reason that it's at least twice as interesting as any other publication. SO READ IT tomorrow and regularly.

ARISTOTLE, GREAT THINKER

By Archibald Henderson

Among eight men, over a period of 2,500 years, whom the Irish philosopher, Bernard Shaw, recently designated as makers of universes, Aristotle is the only one not primarily a mathematician, a physicist or an astronomer. In the field of pure thought, of philosophy as such, Aristotle is generally recognized as the most influential throughout the entire course of human history. He is often referred to as the Stagyrite, because he was born in the little town of Stagyra, the modern Slavia, on the northeast coast of Greece. But he is best known, through the phrase applied to him by another mighty figure in the realm of thought, Dante. That phrase is: "the master of them that know."

Aristotle was a great organizer of the then extant human knowledge, with an encyclopedic mind and a great faculty for accumulating and systematizing what was actually known or shrewdly surmised about physical and biological nature. In his excellent work, "The Adventure of Science," Ginzburg says, "Aristotle's intellectual empire endured, almost without a break for 18 centuries . . . This tremendous and unexampled influence which Aristotle exercised was not due altogether to external factors. He was an intellectual genius of the very first order . . .. He was wonderfully equipped to serve as the educator of whole civilizations that were struggling upward from barbarism."

Aristotle was born in the year 384 B. C., the son of a distinguished practitioner of the doctrines of Aesculapius, being physician to the royal court of Macedonia. After a youth spent to little purpose, intellectually, as the royal court, Aristotle went to Athens and entered the Academy of Plato, where he remained for the next 20 years. Aristotle was, by training and inheritance, essentially a botanist. He never became a disciple, although he was long a pupil of Plato. It was only in the domain of intellectual method and discipline that Aristotle was influenced by Plato; for in philosophy, Aristotle never became a Platonist. Certainly the relations between the two great thinkers were very close; and on the death of Plato, Aristotle left the academy with which he had so long been associated.

After some years spent at Assos and in Mitylene, Aristotle was summoned to Macedonia by King Philip to act as the tutor of his son, Alexander, afterwards known as the Great. It is disappointing to realize that Aristotle, the greatest mind of his day, exercised comparatively little constructive influence directly upon the man who was to become the conqueror of what was then understood as the world.

It is supposed, however, although Aristotle's writings do not mention it, that Alexander placed large sums of money at Aristotle's disposal, to enable him to organize, and systematize, all extant knowledge. Says Pliny the Younger: Alexander the Great, fired by desire to learn of the natures of animals, entrusted the prosecution of this design to Aristotle. . .For this end he placed at his disposal some thousands of men in every part of Asia and Greece and among them hunters, fowlers, fishers, parkkeepers, herdsmen, beewards as well as keepers of fish ponds, of aviaries in order that no creature might escape his notice. Through the information thus collected he was able to compose some 50 volumes.

Aristotle may be thought of as the forerunner of Lord Bacon and of Immanuel Kant. In ancient times he created the model for our modern universities, as instruments for the study of the world, the collection of data, and the dissemination of knowledge.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—All my life I've had a distinct flair for getting into jams just because I am an agreeable sap. When 18, a stranger galloped up to my father's country town hotel, dismounted and handing over the reins said: "Young squirrel, hold my mount until I get a drink!"

Fifteen minutes later when a posse came thundering up there I was holding the stolen horse. And ask anyone in Missouri what they usually do to a horse thief. Another time I swung off a California train at a water tower stop to send a telegram for a deaf old lady to her son in Los Angeles.

When I went back to the train the tail light, gleaming red in the night, was swinging around a far-away curve and there I was in the middle of Arizona with a cross-eyed station master and his pet horned toad and no train for 14 hours. It has gone on like this for years.

So it is entirely my fault that I accompanied my wife to a dress-making establishment this morning. She did not ask me. But that is the way I am. Anything to be agreeable. You may know how I frequently hippety hop through department stores to match ribbons.

I can think of no spot where a man feels so all atwitter as at a dressmaker's. Aside from it being no place for a he-person my bunion always throbs in a stuffy room. I tried to be inconspicuous by adding meaningless figures on an old envelope.

But saleswomen have a fixation the husband is the one to please and they make the mannikins slink up to him. Maybe other husbands are different but when a young thing comes out in a deep V gown and slithers sinuously up to me I don't know where to look. All knuckles and ears.

Every worker, too, seemed to have left something or other in my chair. They would rush up one by one with an inquiring look. I would stand up and turn around while they glanced at the empty seat and rushed away. One might think I was going to lay an egg or something.

* * *

A saleswoman brought a pair of filmy underthings and held them before a lady several chairs from me. "This," she cooed, "is our best number." I am not step-in conscious but from a fleeting glance the number looked a sweetheart, with all its chiffon, ruffles, etc.

* * *

Finally the open door of an unoccupied fitting room looked inviting so I crept to a seat behind the door but no sooner got settled than a customer popped in. She began to loosen things and I should have screamed. I cleared my throat politely and she spied me. As I stumbled out in confusion I heard her snap to someone: "I thought Jack the Peepers were only newspaper talk!"

* * *

Yet there are pleasant reactions to a dressmaking salon. It is so vibrantly alive. Everybody seems to skip and there is the bird-like coquetting of the aviary. Through it all runs feminine immodesty and the extravagant flattery of Parisian accented saleswomen. The air is suffocating with exotic perfumes and there are those polished and marceled floorwalkers in cutaways and lapel flowers. They appear to have just stepped from a musical comedy and if I watch them long they have me that way. I want to pose and recite.

* * *

Dressmakers speak of presentations as "collections" and frocks are known by such names as "Dawn," "Constancy," "d'Esprit" and one called "The Moon Goddess' was a honey, an imported evening creation. I copped a peak at the price tag—$395—and my cane was ready in case my wife reached for it.

* * *

In some ateliers—I've used up salon, shop and establishment—they have what is known in the trade as a "Screaming Room." Sound-proof. And there they pilot customers who in a flurry of disappointment over misfits are likely to skyrocket into hysteria. No room is provided for husbands when they are handed the bills. They probably drag them out feet-up and let them come to in the alley.

* * *

In the semi-naked abandon of the dressmaking place I thought of the belle of our town. In passing Womeldorff's hardware store one afternoon in that dim decade she heard a mule-like gust of laughter. Her hand flew to her skirt placket. It was slightly open. She swooned.

Isn't It So?

The man who has no friends may be envied by the man who has too many.

Those people who boast that they never indulge in profanity may inspire the most in others.

The automobile has come to stay, except in the case of the family that can't keep up with the payments.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Heavy Borrowing

England borrows a billion from France. That's news with six per cent added.

Also a victory for the diplomat who does the borrowing.

How does an ambassador go about mooching a billion? Does he put up a bold front or does he cop a sneak on a tangent?

Does he put on all his knitting medals and dash up like a tin peddler's wagon? Or does he just stroll in as calm and collected as last year's income tax?

Let's say Belscravia wants to put the lug on Skanoofia for a billion. Now, the treasurer of Skanoofia knows that Belscravia is such a bum that the kink is using a park bench for a throne.

The premier says, "Say, Gus, you ain't gotta billion you ain't using, have you? I'd like to get a dime for myself, too. I want to buy a new set of inner soles for my running shoes."

That's the way they do it in diplomacy. Even if the borrowite fails to pay the borrowee there is nothing lost because Skanoofia borrowed the money in the first place.

You cadge Paul to kick in to Peter. Then you stand them both off.

That's what is known as international finance. And the state treasury is never empty so long as it's full of complaint blanks.

It seems to be an old Spanish custom that speaks all languages. Diplomats can borrow such astonishing sums that the mere rattle of the adding machine would make an expert accountant swallow poisonous decimal points with suicidal intent.

And no nation ever asks to be paid back. That would be changing the subject. The way it gets its money is to borrow from another country during an unguarded moment.

Wise Words

Be Generous This Christmas

The Need Is Great, the Opportunity Is INFINITELY GREATER

Buy liberally, this Christmas. Give all that you can afford, give even that which you feel you cannot afford.

The happiness of giving will make you realize that you COULD afford it.

Give to your family and to friends, and do not forget those to whom this Christmas, without you, would mean want and sorrow.

Remember that there are those, old and young, to whom you can give this year a proof of love or friendship that will not be here next year.

If you MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY it will never return.

GIVE GENEROUSLY, not that it may come back to you, not that you may be rewarded here or hereafter, but that you may DO GOOD and that you may have the approval of your own heart and conscience.

Imitate the great Napoleon who swept aside the objection that circumstances made something difficult. "Circumstances," said he, "I MAKE CIRCUMSTANCES."

Circumstances seem to make generous buying and giving difficult this Christmas, but the man of courage, imagination and a kind heart will say, with Napoleon, "I MAKE CIRCUMSTANCES," and will find a way, in spite of conditions and circumstances, to be generous with his family, liberal with his friends, and above all CHARITABLE TO THE POOR.

On the left you see the sort of Christmas that many families, unfortunately, must look forward to. The stockings are empty, the young mother, with the child in her arms, seeks vainly to make up with greater love for the lack of Christmas joy, the father and "the old people are sorrowful, because of the children's sorrow."

On the right you see the same family, transformed miraculously as night is changed into day by the rising sun, and YOU can cause that transformation.

"And now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity, these three; but the greatest of these is Charity."

Very great is the power of charity that can work such a miracle as is shown in these pictures, changing tearful eyes to laughing eyes, sad faces to glad faces, and heavy hearts to cheerful hearts.

We celebrate on Christmas Day the birth of Christ, and no man should let Christmas pass without celebrating that sacred day, as He would have it celebrated, by contributing happiness to the children that were His constant care.

Make this a happy Christmas, for yourself and others, by generous giving to those about you, and near to you. And make the best investment that any human being can make, an investment in happiness for others that are poor and sorrowful, remembering the warning:

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

Conquer circumstances. In honor of Christmas Day, and the wonderful birth and death that it commemorates, practice the generosity that refuses to be controlled by conditions, BUY generously, GIVE generously, perform the miracle of changing sorrow to joy.
